

Drainage work continues

State Highway Department crews have been working along the north side of East Broadway, near the underpass, for the past week to eliminate a drainage problem there. A spokesman said the old railroad yard located north of the highway reportedly had an old spring in it. Constant resurfacing and patching of holes on the north side of the road has been needed because of seepage in the area. The new drain being installed should alleviate the problem, it was reported.

Grain investigation

Inspection is faulty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of Agriculture J. Phil Campbell said today the grain export inspection system is plagued by many inherent problems, but that the Department of Agriculture has uncovered them and is moving to correct them.

Without mentioning specific allegations of corruption that have been made about the system used to inspect grain before it is shipped to foreign purchasers, Campbell said the problems must be "overcome to improve the integrity of our national grain inspection system."

Campbell testified before the Senate subcommittee on foreign agriculture policy, amid allegations that wheat and other commodities sold to foreign countries are being mixed with dirt and debris.

The subcommittee joins at least four other investigations looking into the foreign commodity trade, focusing on bribery among federally licensed inspectors whose approval is needed before the shipments can leave U.S. ports.

Campbell substituted for Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who is in South America this week.

A spokesman for the subcommittee said the panel was primarily concerned with determining how extensive the problems are, although it would look into grading standards used to classify the grains and the manner in which the commodities are handled on the docks.

"Are there a few bad apples in the barrel or is the barrel so rotten that it contaminates all the apples that get in?" he asked.

The Departments of Justice and Agriculture, the Internal Revenue Service and one other Senate subcommittee are investigating the handling of grain as it moves from the farm belt to cargo ships.

The probe began in New Orleans, the nation's biggest grain shipping port. There have been 15 indictments in New Orleans and five in Houston as a result of various federal investigations.

Miss your paper?

If you fail to receive your copy of The Democrat by 6 p.m., you must call 826-1000 before 6:30 p.m. On Sunday you must call before 10 a.m.

Butz said in a recent interview that the Agriculture Department was looking into several options to improve inspections, including a federal takeover that could add 3,000 jobs to the federal payroll. Federal law now prohibits the federal inspection of grain but requires licensing by the department of the grain inspectors.

The inspectors are hired by private firms, boards of trade or state agencies to approve or disapprove the grain shipped from U.S. ports and to inspect the shipping facilities, including cargo holds.

A six-man delegation from the Federation of European Feed Compounders recently confirmed charges that broken corn, cheaper grains, dust, dirt and trash are added to export shipments.

A federation spokesman said that unless the quality of the grain and soybean meal is improved, European buyers may be forced to look elsewhere for the commodities.

However, Harlan Ryan, chief grain inspector at the port of New Orleans, denied that dirt is intentionally added. He said foreign buyers can purchase any grade of grain and specify its cleanliness. Most purchase lower grades because they're cheaper, he said.

Armed troops rescue people from church

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Armed troops rescued more than 120 priests, nuns and lay Roman Catholics today from Lisbon's Catholic church headquarters, where they had been besieged for 17 hours by hundreds of angry leftists.

There was no immediate indication whether Antonio Cardinal Ribeiro, the patriarch of Lisbon and Portugal's top churchman, had boarded the canvas-covered army trucks with the others for the drive to safety.

In another development, Portugal's leftist military rulers reversed themselves again and admitted the Communist printers of the Socialist newspaper Republica to the newspaper plant. The paper's Socialist editors were barred.

Cardinal Ribeiro and the other Catholics were trapped inside the patriarchate Wednesday evening after several thousand leftists broke up a small pro-Church demonstration outside the building.

About 500 Catholics, gathered to support the Church's efforts to recover a radio station seized by Communist workers, were driven inside the three-story building as the leftists hurled paving stones at them.

The siege was finally lifted after noon when military authorities sent reinforcements and trucks to the Square of the Martyrs.

The decision to permit Communist printers into the Republica building was the latest reversal in a seesaw struggle during which the government has several times promised to give the paper back to the Socialists only to have officers of COPCON, the military security force, hand the building's key to the Communists.

The government gave the printers control of the building Wednesday morning. But after the Socialists threatened to quit Premier Vasco Goncalves' coalition cabinet, troops expelled the Communists from the building Wednesday night.

Goncalves and Socialist party leader Mario Soares agreed that both the printers and the editorial workers would be admitted to the building this morning, and negotiations would begin to try to find a working arrangement between the Socialist and Communist factions. About 40 typographers were admitted this morning, but senior editor Joao Gomes was told by a young lieutenant: "You cannot go in ... Only the workers are allowed in."

"On whose orders?" Gomes demanded.

"On the orders of COPCON," said the officer.

COPCON, or Continental Operational Command, is the military security force responsible for maintaining order. Led by Brig. Otelio Saraiva de Carvalho, an ultraleftist, it has recently displayed increasing independence and is being called by some the "new PIDE," after the Salazar dictatorship's secret police.

The Socialists, Portugal's largest party, have threatened repeatedly to quit the government unless Republica is returned to their control. If they quit the cabinet, the Popular Democrats, the second largest party, would probably walk out also, leaving the Communists the only civilian faction represented. This would destroy the semblance of majority civilian participation in the military-dominated government and could provoke an adverse reaction.

Adopted by Labor party

Israeli map announced

TEL AVIV (AP) — The secretary-general of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's Labor party said today the party has adopted a map for Israel's final peace borders that annexes the Golan Heights and the Gaza Strip.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman, asked if the map represented official Israeli policy, said the national policy "does not follow a precise map that has already been prepared ... We talk in principles more than about lines on a map." But he added that the Labor party map does not contradict Israel's policy.

Meir Zarmi, the secretary-general of the Labor party, told a gathering of Labor party kibbutz members that the map:

—Annexes the Golan Heights, captured from Syria in the 1967 six-day war.

—Annexes the Gaza Strip, captured from Egypt in 1967.

—Establishes the Jordan River as Israel's security border.

—Leaves open for future negotiation the sovereignty of the west bank, won from Jordan eight years ago.

—Leaves open for negotiation the sovereignty of Sharm el Sheikh at the southern tip of Egypt's Sinai Peninsula, as well as a narrow strip of land on the east coast of the Gulf of Aqaba connecting Israel proper with the strategic strait.

A Labor party spokesman said all party cabinet ministers, including Rabin, Defense Minister Shimon Peres and Foreign Minister Yigal Allon, were obliged to support the map should it ever come up for a vote within the government. This means the Labor map almost certainly would become official Israeli policy since Labor has a clear majority in the coalition Cabinet.

But any settlement negotiated on the basis of the map would have to win approval from the parliament, where the Labor party has no majority.

The government has come under some accusations, both at home and abroad, of failing to present a clear program for a final peace settlement with the Arabs, including a map of the borders it wants. Zarmi's statement that Labor has "a clear final map" appeared aimed at countering these attacks.

The specific points mentioned by Zarmi have been made public before, but it was believed the first time they were compiled and presented as a clear and "final peace map."

Union to vote on new vacation plan

Town and Country Shoes Inc., employees who are members of Teamster's Local 534 will vote at 5 p.m. today on whether to accept a changed vacation policy announced by the company Wednesday.

John Lipscomb, St. Louis, president of the company, Thursday said if the workers do not agree to the revised staggered vacation plan, the company may be forced to close permanently.

The union decision will come at a meeting to be held at the Ramada Inn. All of the company's 360 factory workers are members of the union, it was reported. It was not known how many will attend today's meeting.

For many years, the company has shut down for a two-week period in the summer for employee vacations. Employees were fully paid only for the number of vacation weeks to which they were entitled.

In recent months, the company has operated on a reduced work-week format to minimize the number of lay-offs created by declining business. However, it was reported, 50 workers recently returned to their jobs.

The proposed vacation change calls for staggered vacation periods in which only 10 per cent of the employees at a time would not report for work. Under this schedule, the factory would maintain its regular operating schedule and not be forced to close entirely.

"We are attempting to avert a complete shut-down by implementing this staggered vacation schedule," Lipscomb said. "We simply cannot afford to close down entirely. It is as simple as that."

Lipscomb expressed confidence the factory workers would accept the plan. Lester L. Hepburn, secretary-treasurer of the local, was not available for comment Thursday.

Lipscomb said the plan was developed approximately 10 days ago.

Committee votes to raise ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee voted today to boost the federal debt ceiling by $46 billion to a record $577 billion through Nov. 15.

The vote was 22 to 12. Six Democrats and six Republicans dissented.

If cleared by the Rules committee, Ulman said, the legislation will be brought up for House action Monday or Tuesday.

Mediators try to avoid strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal mediators brought railroad representatives and officials of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks together for negotiations today to head off a nationwide rail strike threatened for mid-night Sunday.

The joint negotiations came after mediators met separately with union President C.L. Dennis and his staff and were said to be in touch with management officials in an effort to bring both sides back to the bargaining table.

But Dennis told a news conference that without "meaningful bargaining" on management's part there is no way to avoid a walkout.

The union announced Wednesday that contract talks had reached an impasse and that it was preparing to strike at 12:01 a.m. Monday. Ford administration officials called the prospect a matter of the deepest concern and said "everything must be done" to prevent it.

But beyond further efforts by federal officials to mediate the dispute, there is little the administration can do. All legal delays have been exhausted and only enactment of emergency legislation by Congress could block a strike.

Dennis said there was some consideration of exempting the bankrupt railroads from the walkout but no fir decision had been reached.

Dennis acknowledged that the effects of a nationwide rail shutdown would create "terrible conditions" and added, "that's why we want to do everything possible to avoid it."

Dennis earlier had rejected an agreement signed by seven other railway unions providing for wage and benefit increases totaling 40.7 per cent over three years.

Oh, say can you see?

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The Baltimore Promotion Council spent $20,000 on Bicentennial advertising about the bombardment of Ft. McHenry inspiring the "Star Spangled Banner."

But the ads gave the wrong year, 1812, for the 1814 bombardment.

Ken Mayhorne, the account executive at the VanSant Dugdale agency who handles the council's work, said the ad was designed to help overcome the city's gross inferiority complex.

"Baltimore is always two years behind ... It was always 1814 everywhere else, but it was 1812 here and that was probably the origin of the inferiority complex."

About 10 people at a local advertising agency and the council read the copy before it was forwarded to the regional editions of seven national magazines. No one noticed.

It's not the only historical misstep associated with the city's effort to make the War of 1812 the center of its Bicentennial observance.

In two recent letters, Army Lt. Gen. Claire E. Hutchins Jr., executive director of the state Bicentennial Commission, referred to the 15 star, 15-stripe flag flying over Ft. McHenry as the "Stars and Bars" — the Confederate flag.

Student lives at racetrack

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Terry Rebert, a student at Concordia Lutheran Seminary in St. Louis, lives at the Ak-Sar-Ben racetrack during the 56-day thoroughbred season.

But he's more interested in daily troubles than daily doubles in his pastorate for the "backside people."

Rebert, 22, who is about half way through his eight years of religious education, lives in a tack room — the rooms each barn has for storage of racing equipment.

"I found it more beneficial to stay in a tack room," he said. Last year he stayed with an Omaha family.

The tack room life blends with Rebert's plan to get the feeling of the barn.

"The most important thing is to get the backside people to know you and trust you," he said.

"I never take the offensive out here," he said. "I'm trying to become part of them. I find it challenging."

His ministry is the group of people and their families who train and care for the thoroughbreds.

The response to Rebert's mission work is hardly encouraging. He has services every Sunday night in the trailer park on the grounds.

The congregation once consisted of one person. "I think the most I ever got was around 20. But I've never had a zero."

Business news

Lynn Ratje, an employee of Dick's Phillips 66 Service, 121 East Broadway, recently earned a special "mystery car" award from a representative of the Gates Rubber Co., Denver, Colo.

The company sponsors this award program, now in its 43rd year, to reward service station personnel who properly check for certain worn or defective auto parts. A fleet of Gates "mystery cars," each equipped with a worn fan belt, faulty radiator hose and defective windshield wiper blades, travel across the country stopping at service stations.

Award plaques, bearing three Eisenhower silver dollars and two Kennedy half-dollars, are presented to station personnel who recognize one of the defective parts and offer to replace it with the correct Gates part.

Bureaucrat switches to fisherman

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass. (AP) — Three years ago Bruce Campbell was part of the Nixon administration, a $27,000-a-year government employee who had two secretaries, wore pin-stripe suits and lived in Washington's Georgetown section.

Now the 31-year-old Campbell operates a party fishing boat on this small, lush island of Martha's Vineyard which lies just off Cape Cod. He has started a scallop company and an ice company and also manages a small, local fish market.

Like hundreds of Americans, Campbell, who grew up in Milton, Mass., has chosen to change his life, to put the pressures and prestige of the executive ratrace behind him. He has grown a beard, wears dungarees to work and is giving his three-piece suits to a Vineyard boy who is going "off-island" to college in the fall.

"I'm working harder and enjoying it more," Campbell said as he downed an early morning breakfast. "The quality of life here is so much better. I don't have to lock the door. Everyone knows you."

Lured by the sound of the fog horn and the smell of the sea, Campbell says he is a happier man, that his marriage has improved, that his kids have a nice place to live. He has a two-story colonial house he built on two acres of land in a wooded section of West Chop, near Vineyard Haven — and though the payments are around $500 a month, he said he has never missed one.

"The first year we had $300 worth of business and $1,200 in debts," he said, rolling his "Rs" softly as New Englanders tend to do. "The next year we had $11,000 in business and $7,000 in debts. Last year we had $22,000 in business and $3,000 debts."

By listening to Campbell, a handsome, healthy looking man who never graduated from college, one can understand why he left Washington's pressure-cooker atmosphere to make a new start on the Vineyard.

At first, the life seemed a little slow and he missed Washington, Campbell said. "Our first year here we got the Washington Post. I missed the activity for awhile, the hustle and bustle. But it fades. It slowly recedes. Now I don't miss it at all. There are lots of bright people here. You make what you want of it."

His conversation drifts back to the days at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare where he said his job in the public affairs office was "to facilitate the Nixon message." He also worked at the Environmental Protection Agency where he had the bureaucratic title of executive assistant to the assistant administrator for air and water programs.

When President Richard M. Nixon's re-election committee was formed, he tried to get a staff job there. But no offer came. "I wasn't liked by too many people because I wouldn't do things through channels," Campbell said, adding that he's happy now that he was rejected.

Polly's pointers

What does one do with gum wrappers?

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the lack of unit pricing on tinned, packaged or bottled foods. I know some states have such a law but I wish it was universal. It really pays to watch and check. Often a special is offered on a large size but if one takes the time to convert the pricing into units, that is ounce weight usually, the small size could be a better buy. Which is more of a bargain—a 12-ounce jar of peanut butter costing 55 cents or a 16-ounce jar (same brand) costing 96 cents? Breaking it down the large size was not such a bargain. — SHIRLEY, from Canada

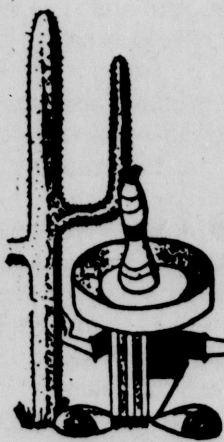

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — For some time I have been collecting gum wrappers and have at least 500 but what can I do with them? If I knew this it would be an unusual and pretty craft and an answer to an ecological problem. I tried making a gum wrapper chain but would like some other ideas. — D.A.H.

DEAR D.A.H. — You really do have an out-of-the-ordinary collection. Why not completely cover a three-panel screen? After the wrappers are glued on in an attractive fashion cover with clear shellac for protection. Also a Parsons table could be entirely covered with such wrappers and treated the same way for a real conversation piece. The wrappers could be used to "paper" a wall in a game or powder room. How about it, readers, have any of you found a use for such wrappers? — POLLY.

FRISTOE — Funeral services for Arlie F. Lopp, 72, who died Tuesday, will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Reser Funeral Home, Warsaw, with the Rev. Jim Wright officiating.

Burial will be in the Fristoe Cemetery.

Conference on woman's role begins

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Thousands of women from 100 nations open a two-week conference today to demand that women get better education, higher-paying jobs and a bigger say in running the world.

The United Nations International Women's Conference is the first U.N. gathering devoted exclusively to women's issues and the focal point of the 1975 International Women's Year.

Men are well represented, however. More than a fifth of the official delegates are men, and U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and President Luis Echeverria of Mexico were to address the opening conference session.

Helvi Sipilä of Finland, secretary general of the conference, told reporters she hoped the meeting would open an era in which "women start participating not only in their own futures but in those of their countries and the world."

"I hope that at the end of this conference we may see the beginning of a new world," said Mrs. Sipilä, who is an assistant U.N. secretary-general, the highest rank held by a woman in the world organization.

The conference will discuss the sharing of responsibilities and activities within the family, inclusion of women in economic development programs and how women can achieve financial independence and political clout.

Delegates will also take up problems of education and health care.

Two women injured when cars collide

Two women sustained minor injuries in a two-car collision at 2:55 p.m. Wednesday at 32nd and Limit.

Margaret A. Crenshaw, 26, Ionia, and Jeana Eckhoff, Cole Camp, were treated at Bothwell Hospital and released.

According to police, Hazel E. Brown, 1102 New England, was driving north on Limit when her car collided with a southbound vehicle driven by the Crenshaw women.

Police said Mrs. Brown was turning left in front of the Crenshaw vehicle, which was "unable to avoid hitting" the Brown vehicle.

A state-owned light pole on the southwest corner of the intersection was knocked down by the Crenshaw car, police said.

Mrs. Brown received a summons for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Panel to explore taps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee plans to question FBI and CIA officials about Soviet capabilities to monitor long-distance phone calls within the United States, an informed source says.

Communist ability to intercept U.S. phone calls was first mentioned in the Rockefeller commission's report and later amplified by news accounts describing how long-distance phone calls were monitored and recorded by satellites and antennas atop the Soviet embassy in Washington.

The source, who described the Senate panel's intentions to investigate the reports, spoke in amplification of a remark made Wednesday by Chairman Frank Church that his committee would look into "the problem of penetration by the KGB and the necessary protection we need to invoke." The KGB is the Soviet spy agency.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, in a news account from its Washington bureau, reported Wednesday that the Rockefeller report referred to monitoring long-distance telephone calls transmitted within the United States by microwave relays.

Quoting government sources, the Post-Dispatch said that although the report referred to "Communist countries," the Soviet Union was believed to be the only Communist nation with the ability to monitor such calls.

The Post-Dispatch said microwave stations about 20 to 25 miles apart transmit about 70 per cent of long-distance-telephone calls in the United States. The remainder are transmitted by underground cables or telephone wires on poles.

To pick up calls between microwave stations, the intercepting antenna must be in the "line of sight" between the stations, the news account said.

Government sources said Russian agents could intercept long-distance calls with a high antenna on the roof of the Soviet embassy. Computers then would separate out the bundles of calls in

Kissinger firm on Asian support

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says despite America's reverses in Indochina, Asia is not going to take a back seat to Europe in U.S. foreign policy.

"The United States will not turn away from Asia, or focus our attention on Europe to the detriment of Asia," Kissinger told the annual dinner of the Japan Society Wednesday night. "Our fidelity to our commitments will be as strong in one part of the globe as in the other."

He said that while continuing to pursue detente with China and the Soviet Union, "the United States will continue to oppose the efforts of any country or group of countries to impose their will on Asia by a preponderance of power or blackmail."

Assassin opposed Islam rule

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — King Faisal's assassin confessed before he was beheaded that he killed his uncle to put an end to the rule of Islam in Saudi Arabia, the government radio reported today.

Prince Faisal Ibn Musaed, the late king's 27-year-old nephew, was executed at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in the central square of the Saudi capital. His head was displayed briefly on a pole, then head and body were carried away for burial in an unmarked grave, in accordance with the tenets of Islam.

The broadcast today said he told his captors he wanted to end the influence of the state religion because it "was standing in the way of development in the country." But the broadcast said the nation will glorify the dead king by im-

Teachers, school administrators to discuss wages

Local school administrators and members of the Sedalia Community Educators Association (SCEA) will meet in closed session at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the board of education building to discuss salary schedules for the coming year, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Allan Henningsen announced Thursday.

No members of the board of education will attend the meeting, Henningsen said. Normally, he explained, such meetings are scheduled earlier in the year. However, he said, "we wanted to wait this year until we saw what the legislature did or did not do for us."

Overall, Henningsen said, the Legislature did not significantly help the local school system from a financial standpoint.

"We'll just have to proceed from there," Henningsen said. "It will be a matter of sitting down and talking things over and presenting our respective views."

SCEA members meeting with school administrators will include the group's professional concern and development committee. Harold Johnston, 663 East 10th, is chairman of the committee, it was reported.

Two Sedalia men must stand trial

Two Sedalia men were bound over to Pettis County Circuit Court Wednesday on two counts each of second-degree burglary and stealing in connection with rural burglaries in May. Their cases were set for the September Circuit Court docket.

Donald Kirk Smith, 19, Homestead Trailer Court, and Talmadge Eugene Brown, 17, Sedalia address unknown, are charged with the May 28 burglary of the Forest Allen residence, Route 1, Smithton. Four guns, 20 silver dollars and about $100 in cash were taken in the burglary. According to Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, three of the four stolen guns have been recovered.

Smith and Brown also are charged with the May 27 burglary of the Chester Plummer residence, Route 3, in which a camera, a stereo and stereo speakers were taken. These items were recovered by Saline County authorities.

Smith and Brown both remain in the county jail in lieu of $7,000 bond each, $3,500 on each charge.

Kissinger did not refer directly to the Middle East but he proposed that Japan join the United States in large-scale research into new forms of energy and expanded production of nuclear fuel. Japan is the industrial country most dependent on Middle Eastern oil.

The secretary opened the door to U.S. relations with the Communist governments in South Vietnam and Cambodia provided they moderate their policies.

"Our attitude toward them will be influenced by their conduct toward their neighbors and their attitude toward us," he told the audience of American and Japanese industrial and foreign trade executives.

Kissinger said the United States would honor its military commitments to plementing the teachings of Islam and his plans with greater vigor.

The government radio announced two hours before the execution that a religious court had found the young prince guilty of shooting King Faisal on March 25 as he was receiving a Kuwaiti delegation during the feast of the birthday of the Prophet Mohammed. Public beheading is the sentence prescribed by Islamic law for murder.

The prince was calm as security men led him from a jail behind the government palace to the block in the center of Dira Square. An official of the court read the sentence to the prince and invoked "Heaven's mercy" for him.

The young man's hands were tied behind his back, but he wore no blindfold. As he knelt, a security man prodded him in the side with a stick and his head jerked upward. The executioner, wearing a yellow robe, decapitated him with a single blow, and the crowd chanted "God is great" and "Justice is done."

The prince was the first member of the Saudi royal family ever executed in public. The only member of the family known to have witnessed the execution

Officials hear explanation of program

The three county court judges and County Engineer Ed Hall attended a meeting in Jefferson City Wednesday on regulations governing the recently announced $4.9 million Federal Highway Safety Funds program for Missouri.

Pettis County is eligible for a total of $47,756 under the 70-30 matching funds program, which is designed to upgrade county road and bridge systems.

The federal government provides 70 per cent of the cost to qualifying programs, with the individual counties providing the remaining 30 per cent. Only "off-system" roads, those normally maintained by county highway departments, are eligible for the program.

Presiding Judge John Bluhm said that Tony Hiesberger, director of the Missouri Association of Counties, which sponsored the meeting, and a spokesman for the State Highway Department explained the program to various county officials.

The program funds are limited to six uses, Bluhm said. Included are strengthening, widening or replacement of bridges; eliminating or improving high hazard locations, including railroad crossings; eliminating hazardous roadside obstacles; upgrading traffic controls to comply with the Uniform Manual on Traffic Control; improving school bus and mail routes to provide all-weather access; and structurally upgrading, including surfacing or resurfacing, roadbeds in need of repairs.

In order to qualify for the program, Bluhm explained, the county must select a project, reach formal agreements with the state and county, approve preliminary designs and cost estimates, approve construction plans and estimates, award contracts, deposit escrow funds for the county's share of the project and maintain improvements after they are completed.

Bluhm said the court has not decided what projects the county will try to complete under the program.

each microwave relay, the Post-Dispatch said.

The roof of the Soviet Embassy, located about five blocks from the White House, is laden with a variety of antennas visible to pedestrians on the sidewalk below.

U.S. intelligence agencies are believed to perform similar monitoring functions in the Soviet Union, though that ability is hampered somewhat because the Soviets use less microwave transmissions, the Post-Dispatch said.

John D. Marks, a former State Department intelligence officer and co-author of a book critical of the CIA, said the Soviet embassy's antennae would have only a limited capacity to intercept microwave telephone calls. He said the Russians more likely use one or more space satellites to do most of the monitoring.

"If you just visualize the line of sight from one microwave tower to another, at some point it goes into outer space," Marks said. "You just put your satellite there, in a fixed position, and pick up the

Japan, South Korea and other Asian countries, and that "allies who seek our support will find us constant."

He added, however, that "if any partner seeks to modify these commitments, we will be prepared to accommodate that desire."

Noting that the United States is Japan's chief source of imported food, Kissinger said: "The United States ... pledges that in times of tight markets it will take account of the needs of our long-time customers, such as Japan."

"We will do our utmost to prevent a repetition of the unfortunate experience of 1973, when we were forced suddenly to restrict the export of soybeans to Japan and to other countries."

was Prince Salman, the governor of Riyadh and a brother of King Faisal.

The prince's father, Prince Musaed, was in Riyadh, but it was not known whether he was present. One of King Faisal's brothers, he has a history of alcoholism and mental illness. The young man's mother also had a history of mental instability.

In Los Angeles, 26-year-old Christine Surma, who claimed she lived with the prince for five years when he was studying in the United States, said he would eventually be honored as a liberator of the Saudi people.

Explanations that have circulated in Riyadh were that Prince Faisal was avenging the death of his brother, Prince Khaled, a religious zealot who was killed by the police nine years ago; that he was part of a power struggle within the royal family; and that he was angry because the king would not let him have a passport to travel abroad because he had been arrested in the United States for selling LSD.

Second elderly Sedalian is robbery victim

A second elderly Sedalian was robbed by three youths Wednesday afternoon, police reported.

James W. Helsey, 91, 419 North Prospect, had $57 in cash taken from him by three boys, each between 10 to 12 years old, at about 1:15 p.m. Wednesday on North Prospect at the railroad tracks.

Police said they believe the boys are the same ones who took $5 from 86-year-old Mrs. Lena T. Corum, 120 West Seventh, Monday afternoon in an alley near her home.

Helsey told police he was walking near the tracks when the three approached him. One of the boys told Helsey that he had dropped a nickel into Helsey's pocket. The boy then reached into the man's pocket and took his billfold.

The boys ran a short distance away and took the money from the wallet and dropped it. They then ran east along the tracks.

Police said they expected to arrest the boys Thursday afternoon.

In other police news, two truck trailers were burglarized over the weekend while parked at the offices of St. Louis-Kansas City Express Inc., 421 North Park. A console stereo, valued at $179, was taken from one of the trucks. Police reported that six boxes containing stereos had been opened but only one was taken. The unit taken weighed about 125 pounds.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in the Wednesday Democrat and Thursday Capital that C. J. "Neil" Chapman, newly-elected president of the Bothwell Hospital Board of Trustees, has only two daughters. Chapman also has one son.

A member of the board for 12 years, Chapman served as vice president immediately before being elected president.

Some say school typical

HOUSE SPRINGS, Mo. (AP) — The situation at Northwest High School, described by a teacher as rampant with sexual promiscuity and violence, is no different from any other place, some residents of this Jefferson County community claim.

"Anything that St. Louis and St. Louis County has, we have here — except it's on a smaller scale," said Sheriff Walter Buerger. "I don't think there is any school or any county in the state of Missouri that is immune."

The high school was in national focus earlier this week when Peggy Cochran, a teacher at Northwest High, told a U.S. Senate subcommittee that drug use, sexual promiscuity, vandalism and violence had been rampant at the high school in recent years.

The subcommittee is taking testimony from various witnesses during its study of juvenile problems in the country's schools.

Mrs. Cochran said drugs have been "very prevalent" in the last two or three years, claimed that 65 girls became pregnant out of wedlock this year and cited student drunkenness during classes.

"There are definitely problems," a parent said in response to the teacher's testimony, "but every school has problems. This has been blown way out of proportion. The teachers are just mad because the bond issues haven't been doing well down here."

But former students at the school said it is plagued by drug use, truancy and overcrowding. A girl who dropped out of school about a year ago said students resented what they considered to be overly strict discipline by the teachers.

The problem of growth was cited as a cause of problems.

"I think the ones moving out here are from the city, and that causes problems because most of the people here are just old country folks," said one woman.

Bachelorhood not key to happiness

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please settle an argument? It's between three couples — all married. We were having a discussion the other night about the joys of marriage versus the woes. One man was telling about his bachelor brother — what a great life he is leading and how he envies the guy. (I felt sorry for the fellow's wife.) I think he convinced a few people that marriage was fine for women but not so good for men.

Is bachelorhood all that terrific? What are the statistics? Perhaps with your medical connections and your friends at the Menninger Clinic you can provide some answers. Does staying single mean never having to say you're sorry? — Unconvinced

Dear Un: According to my medical friends and the experts in the field of mental health, married men fare much better than bachelors. Bachelors have more physical illnesses and more emotional breakdowns. They drink more and have a shorter life span. They are seven times more likely to commit crimes and 22 times more likely to be in prison or jail. Every happiness poll I have ever read indicates that single men are the unhappiest lot in the world.

Dear Ann: My story is true and my life is just beginning. I only hope that my letter will encourage others to seek help and help themselves — as I did.

Three years ago I attempted suicide. I was terribly depressed and life had no meaning. I didn't love my husband to whom I had been married for several years. He was cruel and domineering. I was terrified of him because he slapped me and pushed me around.

Today I am divorced and becoming a real person. I have a good job, keep my home beautifully and have learned that I can do almost anything if I put my mind to it.

Counseling has been my backbone. I see a psychiatrist every week and have been in therapy for over a year. Progress comes an inch at a time because we must work very hard to change ourselves. Counseling need not be expensive. Some counseling is free. United Fund agencies, Recovery, Inc., Catholic Family Services, Community Mental Health Centers and many others are available and eager to help. If you suffer from "nervousness," depression and mental anguish, please call your doctor, pastor, rabbi or priest, school principal, AA, Al-Anon, The Salvation Army, Community Mental Health Center or the United Fund. If they have no answers, ask them to recommend someone. The first step is the hardest. It takes courage.

I wake up each morning and smile in my mirror. Then I look out the window and smile at the world. It's so good to feel well and counseling has made the Grand jury blasts board, candidates

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A St. Louis Circuit Court grand jury investigating reported wrongdoing in a city school board election April 1 has blasted both the city Board of Education and board candidates for negligence and indifference during the campaign.

The grand jury, in a report released Wednesday, said an eight-week investigation disclosed "many serious irregularities" during the election.

But the grand jury refused to return any indictments because it could not trace the responsibility for the irregularities to any single individual or group.

The grand jury said many candidates had collected the needed petitions for their candidacy in a negligent, indifferent and shoddy manner.

It also charged that the school board allowed the names of nine candidates to be placed on the ballot, even though they did not have the required 2,965 petition signatures. Four of those candidates were elected and are now on the board.

Among the violations cited by the report were forged petition signatures, false certification and illegal notarization of the signatures, and the gathering of signatures on a blank paper with the candidate's name added later.

The grand jury recommended computerized certification of petitions in city elections, a state legislative review of city school board election laws and a statute making a candidate fully responsible for the authenticity of petition signatures gathered on his behalf.

difference. I have a long way to go but at least I've begun. — You'll Know Me By My Smile

Dear Smile: Thanks for repeating something I've been saying for years.

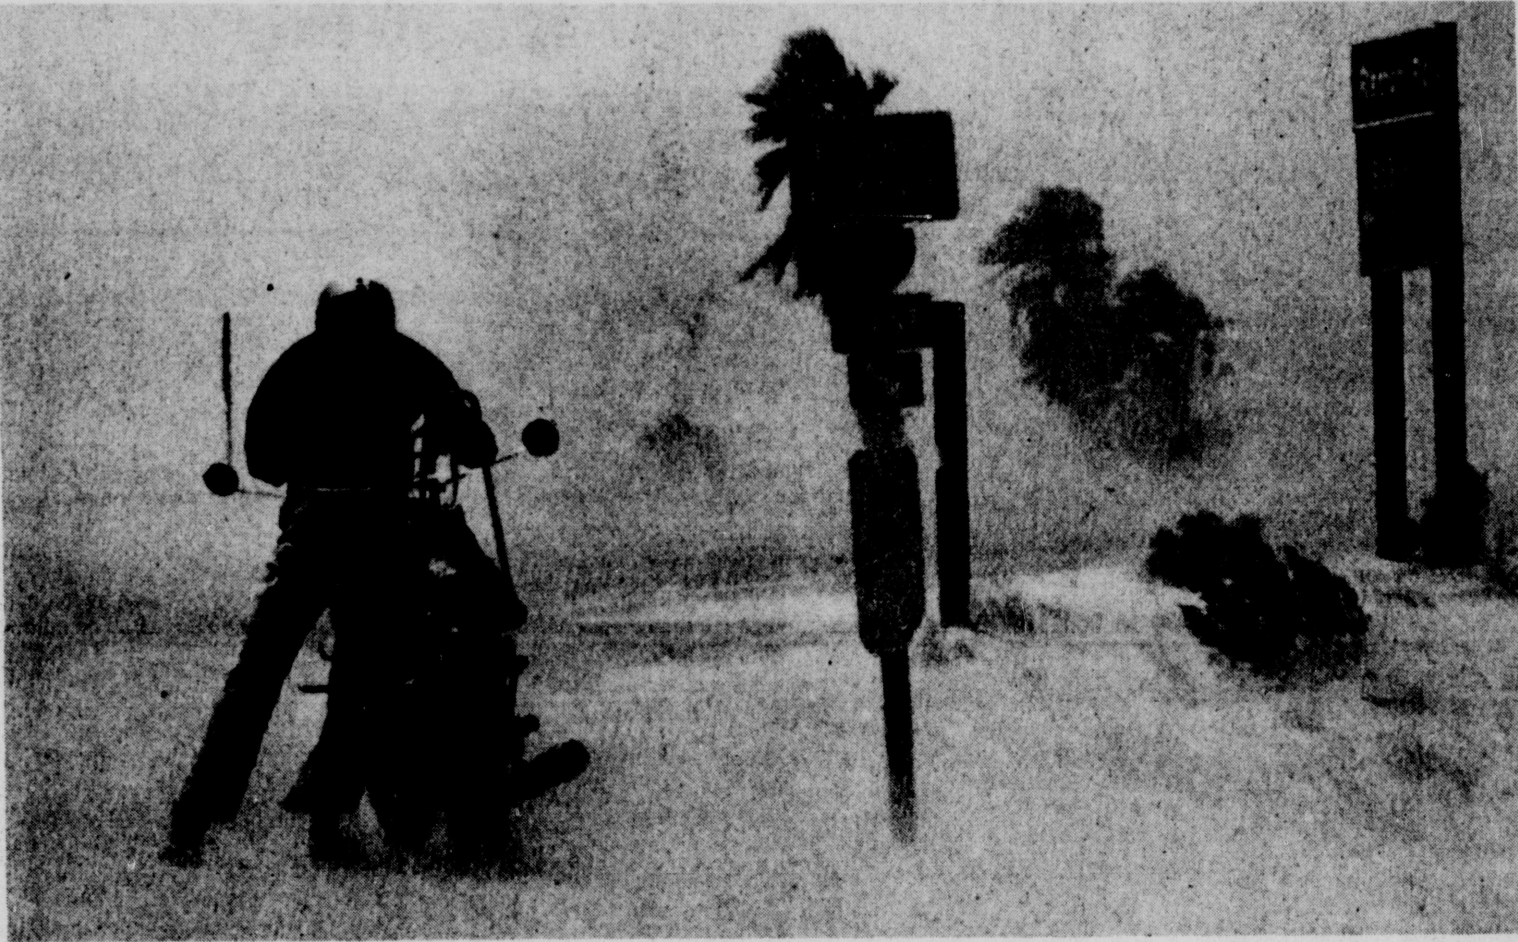

No longer can people use the excuse, "I can't afford professional help." It needn't cost $40 an hour. As you pointed out, many agencies, self-help groups and counseling services do a wonderful job for a modest fee or no fee at all.

Regarding counseling for sex problems: I urge all my readers to stay out of the yellow pages. There are thousands of phonies around who prey on desperate people. The best clinics are connected with universities and hospitals. And beware of "group therapy" or the suggestion of surrogate partners for sex problems. Both approaches can be very damaging.

Kick in head

By ERMA BOMBECK

I heard of a couple the other day who, in their latter years, enjoy financial independence they never dreamed possible.

However, due to maladies, their respective diets are limited to baby foods.

Is that a kick in the head? It's the old saw — when you need it, you can't afford it... when you can afford, you can't enjoy it.

We used to drive around on Sundays and look at houses built to accommodate a growing family. The only ones who could afford them were couples whose children had grown. The idea of all those empty bedrooms used to keep me awake at night. (I had a nail outside of ours with a card reading, "This number being served.")

It's cruel to even bring it up, but these are just a few of the observations that are probably in your future and mine.

When you no longer have to read a menu from the dollars and cents column, you'll have to read the parenthesis (20-minute wait may be too long).

When your husband can afford to have his hair styled, he may have nothing left to rearrange.

When you can afford to have your hair frosted, your teenagers may have streaked it for you.

When you can afford to have a cleaning lady take the fingerprints off the walls, you may not have any fingerprints living at home.

When your trees are big enough to hang a swing from, there will be no one young enough to use the swings.

When you can afford sexy clothes, you'll have forgotten why you are wearing them.

When you have time to get a tan, researchers will have discovered it makes you look older and is unhealthy.

When you can afford to "get away from it all," it will take more effort to go than to stay.

When you have more than a $5 balance in your checking account, you'll have an accountant to manage your affairs.

When you have a complete set of matching glasses for eight, you'll only need two to set the table each night.

When someone gets around to baking your birthday cake, the candles will be a fire hazard.

My big fear is that by the time I have time to explore who I really am and find my true identity, I'll discover I'm average.

Better to live with baby food than that.

Brown bags seen at White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation has hit the White House. First Lady Betty Ford held a "brown bag" lunch on the White House South Lawn on Wednesday for members of the Republican Congressional Wives Club.

Mrs. Ford told the women: "At least you all got what you wanted because you had to bring your own."

The luncheon was planned in January when Mrs. Ford attended a meeting of the club and jokingly said at the time she wanted to have them at the White House but "I might have to ask you to brown bag it. With inflation, my husband is after me to cut down."

YOUR MFA ON THE GROW

MFA'S RESEARCH FARM: PLANTING SEEDS FOR THE FUTURE.

Soybean planting came early at the MFA Research Farm this year. In late winter, MFA seed researchers planted over 12,000 seeds in our greenhouse. Some plants didn't meet our standards. So, in May, seeds from only 9,000 plants were planted in test fields.

And when harvest time comes around this fall, seeds from only about 1,500 of the original plants will be selected for yield tests during 1976.

Why all this testing and selecting? So we can develop just one or two improved soybean varieties adapted to Midcontinent growing conditions. Varieties that can mean higher yields and more profits.

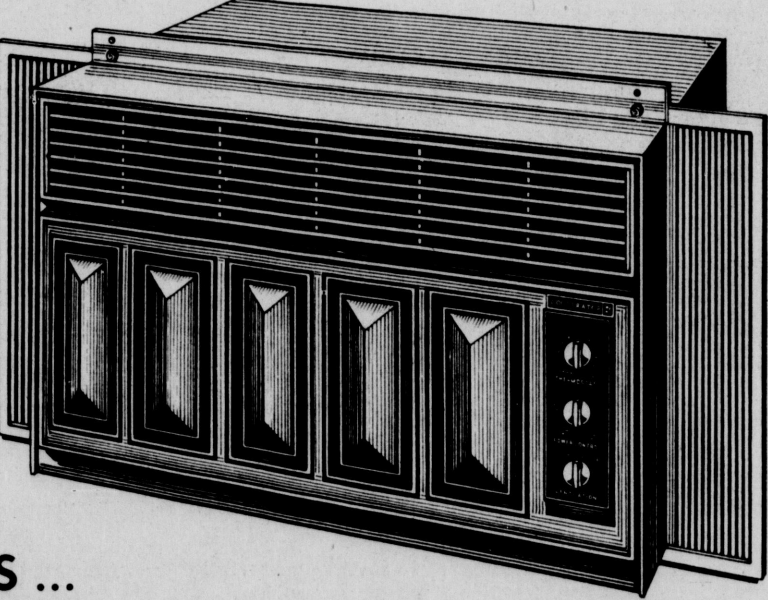

Your MFA Research Farm... just one more reason why we say the future belongs to the farmer who belongs to MFA.

Tammy returns from nightmare

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP) — Like her mother said, "It's like Christmas, New Year's and Easter all rolled into one," for little Tammy Perrin, 6, back home after a nightmare. Tammy was released Tuesday night from the University of Kansas Medical Center where she had been a patient since found June 8, wandering dazed near a wooded ravine, beaten, assaulted and slashed. Police believe her kidnaper left the girl for dead. He has not been found. There are no suspects and very little evidence, police said. Tammy spent Wednesday getting acquainted with a large stuffed elephant and making mud pies with friends in the front yard of her home, smiling despite a stitched gash that extends from under her left eye to her right cheek. Waiting for Tammy was her room piled high with dolls, stuffed animals, toys, coloring books, and hundreds of other gifts and cards from well-wishers throughout the country. "I'm so proud of her," said Tammy's mother, Mrs. Billie Smitson. "I didn't expect her to be well this quick. She's just as active as she can be." Mrs. Smitson took Tammy back to the medical center Wednesday for psychiatric counseling, part of the therapy for her recovery from an ordeal doctors hope has no traumatic after effects. "She isn't showing any serious psychological problems, but the doctors say they don't know if there will be problems in the future," Mrs. Smitson said. She added that the family, which also includes Tammy's grandmother and three brothers, is house-hunting, planning to move from the home where Tammy's abductor enticed her into his car while she was at play. "I don't know if staying here will be bad for her," Mrs. Smitson said. "She's been real busy with her friends, but I don't know how she will be when things calm down." Tammy's stitches will be removed Friday and doctors are uncertain whether further surgery will be needed to reduce scar tissue. Said Dr. William Wennen, who has been treating the youngster, said, "She will always have a scar, and our job is to make that scar as small and least noticeable as possible." Area residents and inmates of the Kansas State Penitentiary at nearby Lansing, and at the U.S. Penitentiary here, have contributed nearly $4,000 for Tammy.

Last survivor of massacre found

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — "It's all so unreal!" Mary Jo Estep said after learning she is one of the last known survivors of a massacre of Indians in the United States. The year was 1911 when her mother, her father, her grandfather and seven other members of a fleeing Shoshone Indian band were massacred by a posse of whites in desolate sagebrush country of northern Nevada. Now a retired school teacher, Miss Estep, 75, said she grew up with a white family and never asked about the massacre. Her place in Indian history was recently discovered by Dayton O. Hyde, an author who spent 15 years researching a novel, "The Last Free Man."

This is his account of the massacre: Miss Estep's grandfather, Shoshone Mike, and a small Indian band that included her family, lived in a canyon near Twin Falls, Idaho. In 1910, Mike was charged with horse stealing, so he and his band fled. Believing they were being pursued, the Indians made their way to California, then across the Sierra Nevada into Nevada. They holed up in a canyon and were soon confronted with the worst winter in Nevada history. The Indians lived on butchered beef until they were discovered by ranchers. Fighting erupted and the ranchers were killed. The Indians fled, chased for more than 300 miles through Nevada Territory by a large posse. The end came near Winnemucca, Nev., when the posse attacked while Mike and his band were asleep. Only four children survived, Miss Estep, two sisters and a brother. The children were taken to the Carson, Nev., Indian School where they remained a short time. Evan Estep, superintendent of the Indian agency at Ft. Hall, Idaho, came to the school and took the children back to Ft. Hall. He adopted Mary Jo after the three older children died of tuberculosis. "They never talked about what had happened," recalls Miss Estep. "I knew my parents had been killed in a massacre, but that's all. I just never asked."

Earlier this year, a woman in California read the book and wrote Hyde that she had gone to school with a Mary Jo Estep, whose parents had died in an Indian massacre in Nevada. Hyde followed the trail to Yakima, where he found Miss Estep, who graduated with a degree in music from Washington Normal School in Ellensburg in 1934. The story told over the years in bars and taverns in Northern Nevada was that the "posse" braved the winter and killed the Indians. But they had the story wrong. One Indian survived. And now the townspeople of Winnemucca hope to erect a monument on the site where Shoshone Mike and most of his Indian band died.

Land condemnation stirs big protest

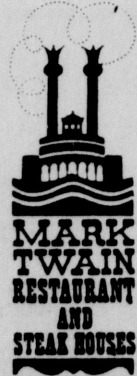

RIVERTON, Mo. (AP) — The government's condemnation of land along the Eleven Point River was protested Wednesday by about 75 to 100 property owners unhappy with federal steps to preserve the scenic stream's pristine beauty. The government's immediate objective was three acres, a saw mill, a house and several outbuildings owned by Wayne Williams. The demonstrators, who gathered in protest at the Riverton bridge over the stream, said their immediate objective was a peaceful show of scorn for a man sent by the National Forest Service to appraise the Williams property. Susie Lance, who operates a canoe rental service adjoining Williams' property at the bridge on U. S. 160, said she saw a government car approach but it didn't stop. The government for about two years has been in the process of buying the necessary land and getting scenic easements to convert 44.4 miles of the Eleven Point into a protected wild and scenic river. At least half of this river length is in the Mark Twain National Forest north and east of Alton, Mo., in the southeast Missouri Ozarks; and the land along it already belonged to the government. The Ozarks Hills and Rivers Landowners Association has been resisting its acquisition of private property along a short upper stretch near Thomasville, Mo., and of around 12 miles from the south boundary of the national forest through Riverton to Missouri 142, just above the Arkansas state line. Williams is among those the Forest Service instituted condemnation proceedings against, but he refused to let a government appraiser on his property. Don Rollins, supervisor of the National Forest Service of Missouri, said at his headquarters in Rolla Thursday that attorneys for Williams and the government came to an agreement in May on a date for an appraisal. The conference was in the chambers of Judge William C. Oliver of the U. S. District Court for Western Missouri in Kansas City. Rollins said the Forest Service hired Thomas McReynolds, member of a St. Louis appraisal firm, to inspect the Williams property. The group which had gathered at the river was under the impression that the appraiser was to arrive at 1 p. m., but several hours later the only sign they had seen was the car spotted by Susie Lance. "We're not only opposed to the government takeover but to their method of taking over our land," said Erman McGibney of Alton, a member of the landowners association. "But we're urging everyone to avoid violence and keep this a peaceful protest." Don Hufstetler of Riverton ridiculed a preliminary appraisal of $1,000 on the Williams property. "The guy was standing right in the middle of Highway 160," Hufstetler said.

Reappraisal of county explained

An explanation of the two-year property appraisal and reassessment program underway in the county was given Tuesday to members of the Noon-Day Optimist Club at their weekly meeting at Bothwell Hotel. Mark Speaker, county project supervisor for Continental Appraisal Co., the firm conducting the reassessment, said 22,000 pieces of property will be inspected and reassessed in the county. When determining the value of property, Speaker explained, location, size of buildings and lot, the cost of replacing a house and the amount of real estate tax are all factors.

These factors are not the same in every area of the county, it was explained. In Pettis County, Speaker said, local material costs, labor rates and construction practices were among the special factors also considered. From these factors, schedules were developed to reveal the square foot cost of different types of commercial, residential and farm buildings and garages. Maps and plats are then used to locate property. The property is inspected and all information gathered is placed on property record cards.

In club business, it was announced there will be a ladies night in July, with no special date yet announced. Guests at the meeting were Fourth Ward Councilman David Curry and George Upton, another representative of Continental Appraisal Co. Bill McCune presided at the meeting.

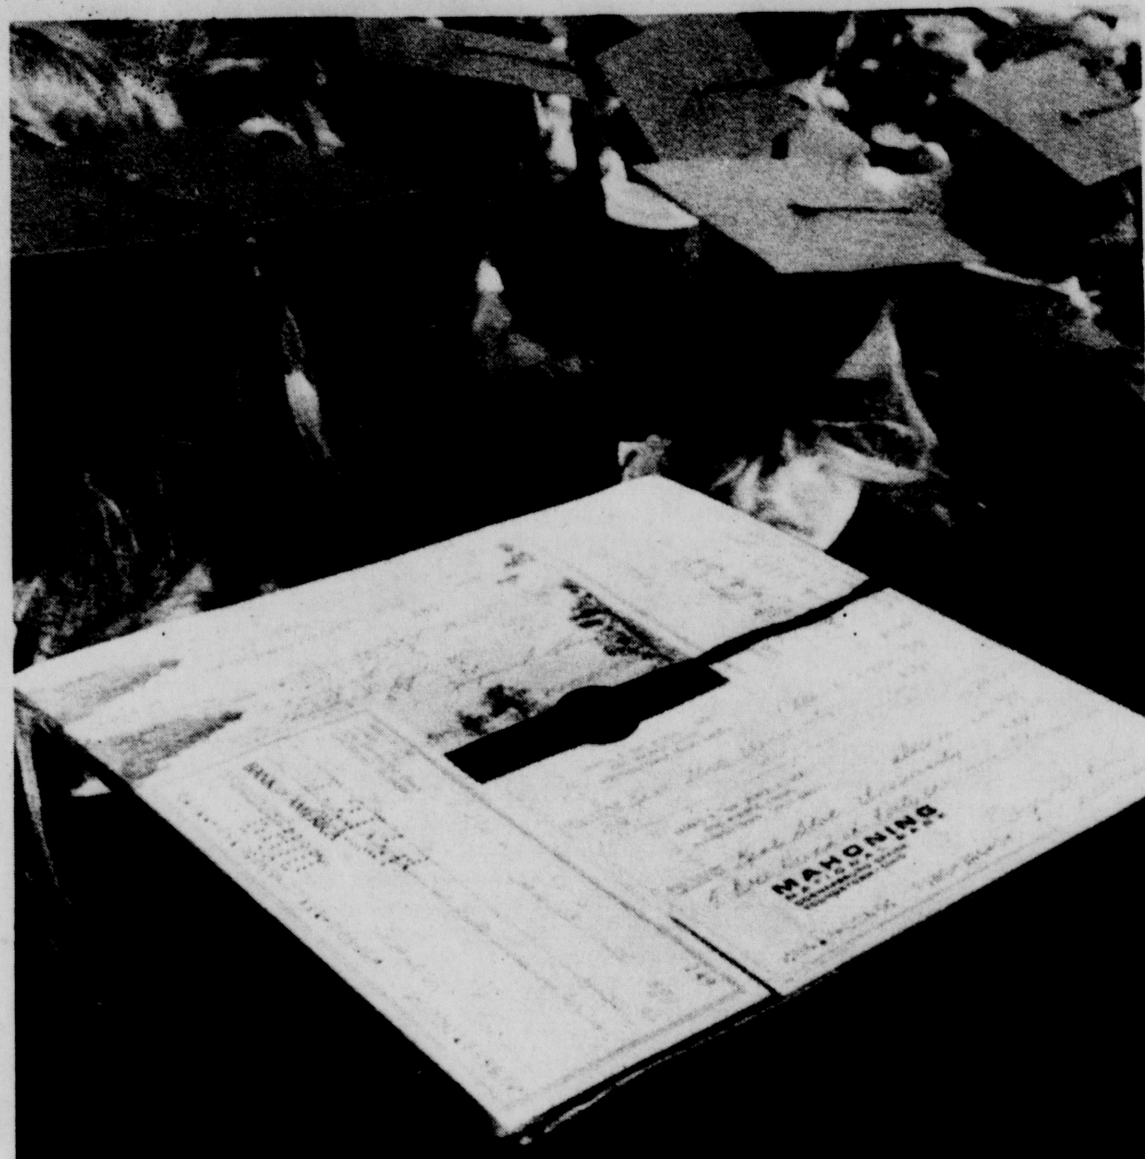

Lehr trying to remedy problems in his office

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Auditor George Lehr said Wednesday he is striving to remedy deficiencies in his office pointed out by the private auditing firm of Pratt, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. of St. Louis.

The firm was hired before Lehr took office by former State Auditor John Ashcroft to study practices under Ashcroft and his predecessor, Christopher S. Bond.

The report cited unaccounted for postage expenses, delayed cash disbursements, inadequate payroll and inventory records and special audit procedures as deficiencies. Lehr said the unaccounted $2,000 in postage resulted from use of the Office of Administration's postage meter, that the practice of requesting checks and then holding them until goods are received has been ended and that inventory records are being kept up to date now even though they were inadequate initially.

Lehr praised the private report and said he will make it an annual event under his administration.

Girl makes confession in holdup

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A Brookfield, Mo., bank holdup that didn't come off as planned resulted in a guilty plea by one of the participants, Marcie Fisher, 19-year-old daughter of a pharmacist.

Miss Fisher entered her plea here Wednesday before U.S. District Court Judge James H. Meredith who said he would impose sentence July 25 after a study of reports by federal probation and parole officers. Miss Fisher was allowed to remain free until then on $25,000 bond.

Awaiting trial on bank robbery charges were James Lane, 27, described as Miss Fisher's boyfriend, and James McKinney, 33. Their trial is set for July 14. Miss Fisher and the two men are from Brookfield.

Lane is accused of the actual armed robbery May 28 at the drive-in annex of the United Missouri Bank of Brookfield, in which $12,045 was taken and recovered.

Miss Fisher was charged with luring the bank manager outside to inspect a car on which she said she needed a loan to buy, leaving only a woman teller on duty inside the bank.

A Six Second Newspaper Ad? It just doesn't exist!

Some folks in the advertising business would have you believe that newspaper readers are an average lot who plod through every word and every page of the newspaper and consequently spend only an average of six seconds with each page. It isn't so and never will be!

Newspaper readers are highly selective: When they buy houses, they read house ads; when they buy clothes, they read clothing ads; when the housewife goes grocery shopping she prepares herself by reading the food ads, the same with appliances, furniture, and all the items people buy for whatever purpose. They take all the reading time they need to make an intelligent decision on what to buy and where to shop.

To reach the person who is ready to buy, tell him in your advertisement all he needs to know about the goods, or services, you offer.

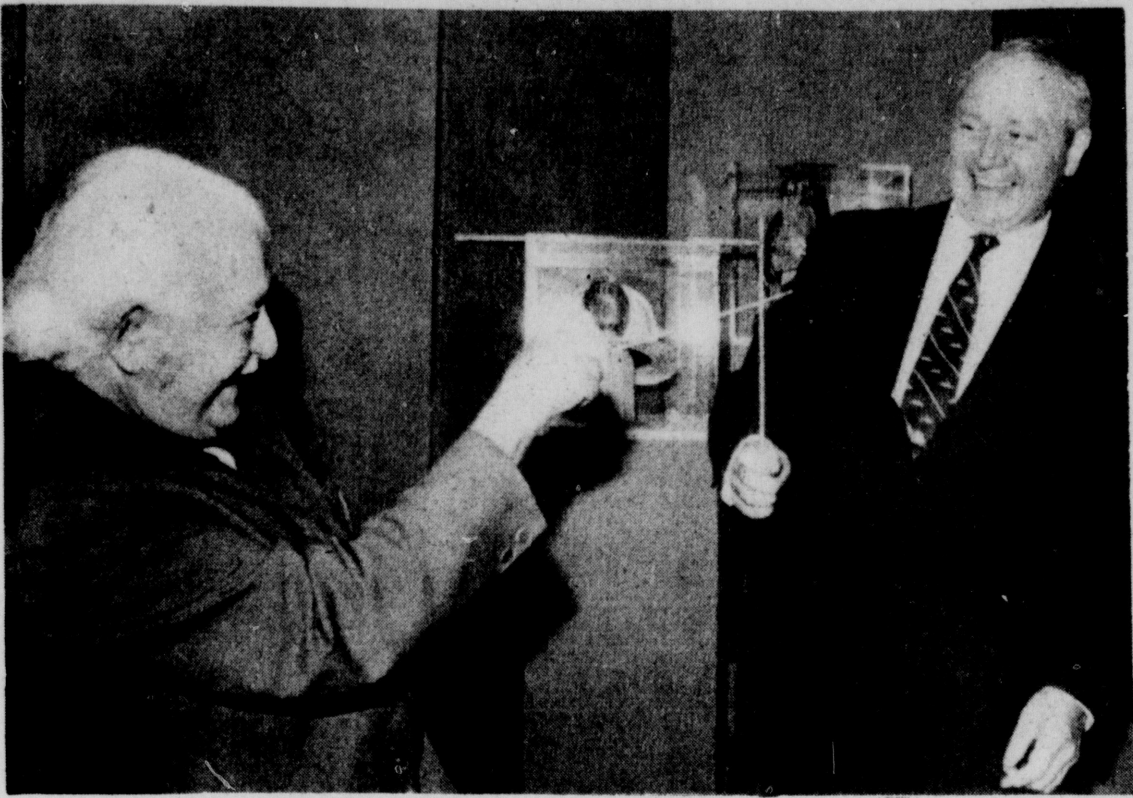

By the way —

If you are an average reader it took you about 34 seconds to read this ad.

Years of blindness end

COFFEYVILLE, Kan. (AP) — Charlotte Sanford no longer has to place her hands upon the faces of her children to "see" what they look like.

She now knows their faces by sight because her 15 years of blindness have come to an end. When Stephanie, her oldest daughter, was born 16 years ago, the disease which was gradually blinding Mrs. Sanford had almost finished its work. The only way she could see her baby was to hold her close to her face, almost touching nose to nose.

"Then I woke up one morning when she was 3 months old and I was totally blind," Mrs. Sanford, now 39, says.

She didn't get to see Julie, who's 15 now, or Pete, who's 4, when they were babies.

Mrs. Sanford took three times as long to cook, clean house and do other chores, but she managed to get it all done and still be active in local church functions. In 1971, when she and her husband were divorced, she took over the management of the family's clothing store.

"When I went to market the first time, I had to feel each garment," she says. "I had to have someone explain it to me. Then I'd make a decision."

Mrs. Sanford said she hadn't been to an ophthalmologist for at least 15 years because she has been told she would never see again. In March 1974 she took Pete to the doctor because of a minor accidental eye injury.

"Pete was all right, but the doctor said he wanted to see me. 'Well, there's nothing you can do,' I told him."

Her eye problem had been diagnosed as iritis when she was 13 years old. Doctors today say she had uveitis. It's a rare, very painful inflammation of the eye. After a five-hour examination, the doctor told her he thought she had light perception in one eye.

Surgery was performed July 7, and it took four hours to remove cataracts and scar tissue from her eyes. Four days later, she put on glasses and could see.

Funding sought for center

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Federal funding is sought to purchase Missouri River land on which a unique educational farm and nature learning center would be located.

State Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston said some funds might be available.

He sponsored a 1975 legislative bill which authorized the Game and Parks Commission to acquire a 1,583-acre tract of land between Omaha and Bellevue for agricultural and environmental education and research purposes.

Most of the land, 926 acres valued at $1,020,000, is being donated by the Offord Foundation. The remaining 657 acres valued at $720,000 can be purchased from Dr. Harold Gifford, former chairman of the Department of Ophthalmology of the University of Nebraska Medical Center, for $675,000.

Koch had originally hoped to purchase the tract with state funds but the final version of the bill limited the expenditure to federal funds and donations.

In signing the bill, Gov. J. J. Exon advised the Game Commission that "only federal funds, not otherwise obligated, will be used to purchase the property."

The focus of the plan developed by the Metropolitan Educational Program Agency, representing 31 Omaha-area public and non-public school districts and colleges, is a farm and environmental education complex.

The tract is formed by a bend in the Missouri River and is adjacent to Fontenelle Forest.

Pierre and Marie Curie isolated the element of radium in 1898.

Cambodian genocide

Those mild-mannered Cambodian Communists we heard so much about before the fall of Phnom Penh are now going about their business with a ruthlessness that would make even Mao Tse-tung blush.

The London Daily Telegraph reports that tens of thousands of Cambodians have died in the course of a "peasant revolution" ordered by the Khmer Rouge. "Cambodia," the paper's correspondent writes from Bangkok, "is now in the midst of what may prove to be one of the most profound human tragedies of recent times."

What has happened is that the Red conquerors have herded whole populations out into the countryside to "cleanse" them of their bourgeoisie ways. This has included the old, the infirm, even hospital patients.

Cholera and starvation also have claimed large numbers of refugees, the British paper reports. All transportation has ground to a halt because of lack of gasoline.

Some observers have termed the Cambodian upheavals nothing less than genocide.

One recalls the pronouncements of various liberal congressmen during the debate on aid for Cambodia a few months ago. Then the catch phrase was that a Communist victory would bring an "end to the agony."

Instead of an end, it marked a new beginning.

The F.M.N.M.S.B.R. case

Tuesday was an historic day in Congress. The House actually voted to ABOLISH a federal agency.

This was the Federal Metal and Nonmetallic Mine Safety Board of Review. Its executive secretary, Jubal Hale, freely admits that the board has done virtually nothing since its creation four years ago. Hale said he has spent most of his time reading books and listening to Beethoven records. For this he was paid nearly $20,000 a year.

In digging up Hale and the F.M.N.M.S.B.R., the taxpayers just may have uncovered a rich lode. How about an amnesty period during which any other federal bureaucrats that don't have anything to do may come out of the woodwork and be honorably discharged?

Trouble is, you'd probably have to create another agency just to handle the paperwork.

FINAL SOLUTION

Merry-go-round

Justice on spot over CIA crimes

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department now faces the ticklish task of determining who should be prosecuted for the crimes that the Central Intelligence Agency committed.

Under CIA auspices, murders were plotted, offices were burglarized, letters were opened, telephones were tapped, defectors were abused and unsuspecting victims were dosed with LSD.

Our sources swear that the Justice Department will prosecute the federal violations and will turn over to the states evidence of local violations.

But the dilemma that already is dividing the Justice Department is whether to go after the top leaders who ordered the illegal acts or the agents who carried them out.

Government agents seldom have been prosecuted for criminal conduct if they were acting under orders. Yet there is even a stronger tendency on the part of the big brass to protect one another.

After the My Lai massacre, the generals in charge of the operation were never indicted. And the Watergate burglars, together with their ringleaders G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, spent more time in the slammer than did their superiors who got early paroles.

Our Justice Department sources say many legal questions must be resolved before it is decided which cases will be pushed. But the prosecutors will do their best, our sources say, to prove that top CIA officials were fully aware they were operating outside the law and, therefore, should be brought before the bar of justice.

DANGEROUS DRINKING WATER: The Environmental Protection Agency's new drinking water standards, it is alleged, do nothing to filter cancer-causing substances from the nation's tap water.

The Environmental Defense Fund charges in an unpublished report that the latest government standards are a "travesty." They are so low, claims the report, that 92.1 per cent of the country's communities already meet them. Indeed, the standards are no better than the 1962 Public Health recommendations for water purity, the report states.

At the eleventh hour, EPA allegedly increased the "safe" levels for fluoridation by 100 per cent. It also encouraged use of chlorine to disinfect the water supplies instead of advocating safer filtration methods, the report charges.

An EPA spokesman told us that the cancer-causing traces, cited by the Environmental Defense Fund, are only "suspects" and not proven killers in the drinking water. The spokesman denied that EPA's water standards threaten public health.

CAPITOL CRIME: Two months ago, we reported the mysterious disappearance of 14 rare aluminum pennies from congressional custody. They were pilfered, apparently, by light-fingered legislators who may be able to sell them some day for up to $1.4 million.

The missing coins were prototypes for a possible new issue of aluminum pennies, which the U.S. Mint considered minting during the 1973 copper shortage.

Mint Director Mary Brooks passed out 16 prototypes to the Senate and House Banking committees, so the members could see what the proposed pennies would look like. Only two of the samples were returned.

It appears as if a serious crime has been committed by some distinguished thieves on Capitol Hill. This puts poor Mrs. Brooks in a delicate spot. If she asks the Secret Service to investigate the congressional caper, she will antagonize the powerful banking committees that oversee her operations.

So she maintains the myth that the pennies are still in the custody of the two committees and, therefore, aren't officially missing.

Housing rates reasonable

Some bad impressions are being left about the recent Housing Authority decision to ask for a RENT CEILING increase for apartments rented to the elderly. One must understand that the "rent ceiling" is the maximum amount that can be charged on an apartment no matter what the capabilities of a tenant may be. The present rent ceiling of $22 for a one-bedroom apartment and $26 on a two-bedroom apartment was set nearly four years ago before at least three Social Security benefit raises and before the advent of Supplementary Security Income.

There are some elderly tenants whose rent will NOT be raised because their income is extremely low. There are others whose capabilities, according to the Brooke Amendment, range as high as $82 per month. These will have a modest rent increase from $22 to $27 for a one-bedroom apartment and $26 to $32 for a two-bedroom apartment.

The Housing Authority is very conscious of limited income and will continue to provide decent housing at costs far below the present market value. But public housing rent by law is based on the level of income one receives. The Housing Authority is simply trying to do a job within the limitations set out by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Our meetings are always open to the public and we welcome any inquiries and comments.

A conservative view

CIA not the monster the Times depicts

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — The Rockefeller Commission released its report on the Central Intelligence Agency on the night of June 10, and on the morning of June 11 the New York Times almost broke an arm patting itself on the back. It was a remarkable acrobatic exercise; it merits a round of faint applause.

The Times started all this business about the CIA with a spread-eagled story by Seymour Hersh on Dec. 22. It is useful to recall exactly what was charged at the time. This was the accusation: that "the CIA, directly violating its charter, conducted a massive, illegal domestic intelligence operation during the Nixon administration against the anti-war movement and other dissident groups in the United States."

In its lead story of June 11, the Times exulted that the Rockefeller Commission's report "confirmed the basic elements of an article in the New York Times last Dec. 22 that quoted sources as saying that the CIA had engaged in a 'massive, illegal domestic intelligence operation against the anti-war movement and other groups.'"

If you perceive that a couple of elements are missing, your perception is functioning nicely. Curiously, these identical elements also were missing from a story on page 22, in which the Times again lauded the Times. The page 22 encomium asserted that the commission's report "affirmed in virtually every respect an account in the New York Times last Dec. 22 of a 'massive, illegal domestic intelligence operation against the anti-war movement and other dissident groups in the United States.'"

Suppose we get this affair in perspective. The commission report does not confirm that the CIA conducted these "massive"

and "illegal" operations in "direct violation of its charter." On the contrary, the report emphasizes that the CIA's charter is vague, ambiguous, and subject to conflicting interpretations by reasonably minded men. The report does assert that over the past 28 years, a few men in the CIA did a few things that were "plainly unlawful."

What about a key element in the original Times story, that these horrid things happened "during the Nixon administration?" That element seems to have dropped down the memory hole. The report makes it clear that Operation CHAOS, as it came to be known, began on Aug. 15, 1967, in response to "continuing, substantial pressure" from President Lyndon Johnson. Yes, the operation continued "during the Nixon administration," but the genesis was with the Democratic administration.

Was the operation "massive?" In terms of the CIA's own commitment, it was minuscule. Fewer than 30 agents were assigned to the project. At its peak, the staff totaled 52. In terms of the intelligence gathered, we may make our own judgments. Probably half a million persons were involved between 1967 and 1972 in anti-war dissidence. The CIA indexed 300,000 names. But "personality files" were compiled on only 7,200.

Was the operation "illegal?" In the commission's view, "some domestic activities of Operation CHAOS unlawfully exceeded the CIA's statutory authority." But that finding has to be set against the commission's finding that the mission itself — to study foreign influence on domestic dissidence — was proper.

The great bulk of the CIA's investigation was lawful, prudent, and discreet. Files were kept under absolute security. The commission could find no evidence that the CIA at any time engaged in any "personal or electronic surveillance, wiretaps, or unauthorized entries against any dissident group or individual."

Against the Times' exalted opinion of the Times' allegations, let me venture this observation: A fair reading of the entire commission report, taking the findings by their four corners, provides persuasive evidence that in its domestic activities, the CIA has acted, on the whole, with reason and with restraint. The opportunities for abuse, over a quarter of a century, were enormous; the actual abuses were few.

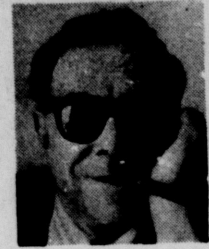

Yes, the CIA is fairly subject to criticism for its excesses, and for knuckling under to the pressures applied by successive presidents. It is a human institution, subject to human error. But on balance, and considering the dirty, delicate, dangerous nature of its assignment, the CIA — at least in its domestic performance — merits far more credit than blame.

Top-level strategy on nukes

WASHINGTON — The good news from the Pentagon this week is that the Air Force has just announced it will start training its crews to fight a "limited nuclear war" in case the United States should want to exercise that option.

While this is an encouraging sign, no one in Washington is quite sure what a limited nuclear war is and unfortunately neither is anyone in Moscow.

"Isn't a limited nuclear war like being a little bit pregnant?" I asked a source high in government circles.

"Certainly not. At the moment small nuclear wars have been considered unthinkable. But we hope that attitude will change, and countries will start thinking about them instead of large nuclear wars that could wipe out a continent."

Everyone is for small nuclear wars," I said, "as opposed to large ones. But how do you persuade the other side that you're not engaging in a large one? How will we know if we're attacked with nuclear weapons that the Soviets or even the French have no intention of destroying the entire country?"

"It won't be easy," the source said. "But if we announce a new nuclear strategy which is more flexible, then the Soviets will adjust their strategy accordingly. For example, suppose the Russians launched an attack on Mobile, Ala.; we would retaliate by hitting Minsk. If they then hit White Plains, N.Y., we would drop nuclear weapons on Kiev. That would be considered a limited nuclear war. As long as there weren't attacks on our major cities, both sides could live with it."

"I can see that. But how will we know that they are only engaging in a limited nuclear war?"

"The source seemed irritated. 'That's what the hot line is for, stupid,' he said. 'The Soviets would alert us as to what cities they intend to bomb and we would alert them about cities we would hit. If they double-cross us and bomb New Orleans, instead of Mobile, we'll just lay a little ol' nuclear bomb on Leningrad. Our insurance is that they don't want their entire country destroyed and neither do we.'"

"I guess we could all live without Mobile and White Plains," I said. "But by changing our strategy from the deterrent of mutual destruction to limited nuclear war, aren't we encouraging both sides to start seriously thinking about using 'A' weapons?"

"Yes and no. The important thing is that we must have more options. Right now the only option we have is to use our weapons for all-out destruction. The Soviets are also stuck with the same options. But, let's face it, if we could use our atomic weapons just to knock out a few Soviet factory towns in the Ukraine, the Russians would only be under an obligation to destroy some place like Detroit."

"Nobody would miss Detroit," I said. "But suppose we had some Hawks in Congress who got mad and said, 'No one can win a limited nuclear war. We have to go all out or nothing?'"

"You'll get some of that. But no President is going to get us involved in an all-out nuclear war. It would wreck the economy and play havoc with inflation. So no matter how much pressure the Hawks put on, the President will see that an 'A' war doesn't get out of hand."

"Now I know you're going to get mad at me for asking this question," I said. "But suppose one side or the other decides it is losing the limited nuclear war and, rather than face disgrace turns it into mass destruction? What happens to your strategy then?"

"It will never happen."

"How do you know?"

"Because our military people aren't crazy."

"How do you know?"

"Because anyone who comes up with a limited nuclear war plan has to be sane."

"How do you know?"

The Government is now erecting an observatory on the Geo. C. Heard farm, near Sedalia. The observatory will be fifty feet high, and it is now nearly completed. It will be used by the U.S. Signal Service Corps to make observations for the purpose of making the new Pacific coast and Geodetic survey.

Today's thoughts

Brethren, I do not consider that I have made it my own; but one thing I do, forgetting what lies behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus. — Philippians 3:13,14.

"Most of us serve our ideals by fits and starts. The person who makes a success of living is the one who sees his goal steadily and aims for it unwaveringly." — Cecil De Mille, American theatrical producer.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Urine is not a medicine

Dear Dr. Lamb — In one of your columns you stated that urine is pure as it comes from the sterile blood. I have been curious about this for quite a long time but, as urine is considered "dirty," I wouldn't have broached the subject. It was interesting to hear that it is clean and that makes me wonder even more about people's aversion to it.

We have just seen a documentary on the sad plight of the people in the drought area in Africa. They were plodding hundreds of miles with their children and livestock through endless dust. Surely they must recycle every drop of liquid and not let it seep into the sand while they perish from thirst.

I drink lots of water, and people have said I might wash out too many minerals from my body. Sounds reasonable. But if urine contains these valuable minerals why should it be discarded?

When I was pregnant I had a shot for morning sickness and heard it was made from the urine of a pregnant woman. Shocking! Then I've heard that some shots are made from a horse's urine. If this is true, there must be some curative qualities there.

I recently read a book advocating using urine for all sorts of miraculous cures. It stated that "... urine extolled by many of the ancients, but misunderstood by the semi-moderns, now appears in the light of a wonderful reservoir — a pitre of preeminent value. It contains in pure and often undreamt of quantity, products of a vital nature." I'm sure the drug companies would reject this, but if it is true it would be a miracle for the destitute who cannot afford these sometimes harmful prescription medicines.

Dear Reader — At the risk of offending you, I'll have to say your letter is a good example of a little knowledge being a dangerous thing.

Urine from a healthy person with no infection of the kidney or bladder is sterile. It is literally a siphoned or filtered out part of our blood. Blood contains no bacteria.

Being sterile or germ free does not mean it is a wonderful, healthy thing. It can be sterile but contain harmful chemicals. The urine is a vehicle to rid the body of excess unwanted chemicals, such as the nitrogen-containing urea, made from the excess protein that so many people eat. The urine can be concentrated if you need to conserve water and diluted if you need to eliminate excess water. The kidney plays a major role in controlling your chemical, salt and water balance. If you drink water that contains too much salt, it will make your thirst worse and lead to death. That is why shipwrecked sailors can't simply drink sea water which, incidentally, contains about the same concentration of salt that is in your blood. Urine, particularly in the thirsty individual, may be much more salty.

That pregnant urine, even from horses, contains an important hormone eliminated to maintain hormone balance. It is useful in certain medical conditions requiring such hormone treatment. It has no value in treating infections any more than other hormones do. So, while I will agree that urine is sterile, the idea that this solution of the body's chemical wastes is a magical cure-all is a bit far out.

Solaita breaks record

Royals get Ryan early in 13-0 win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nolan Ryan likely is on the shelf and seldom-used Tony Solaita is on cloud nine.

Ryan, the ace of the California Angels, yielded four runs in the first inning Wednesday night in a 13-0 loss to the Kansas City Royals and had to leave in the third because of a groin injury. The defeat was the third in a row for Ryan, who has tossed four no-hitters in his career, including one in his start just before the three-game losing streak started.

Solaita, who said he played "about my third game at first base this year," broke a Royals club record for runs scored in one game with five. He also hit two home runs, his sixth and seventh of the season, and a single and drove in four runs.

Ryan said he felt the injury to his right groin after throwing three pitches to Hal McRae starting the Royals' third. He may miss a pitching turn but won't know until Friday.

Ryan said of his defeat and the four-run uprising, started by George Brett with a one-out single:

"I've had trouble with my rhythm and control all year. Yeah, I guess it's been worse the last three games. I was having trouble getting my fast ball over the first inning. The four hits in the first were on three curves and a change."

After Brett's single, Amos Otis walked on four pitches, and McRae, who had three hits, singled Brett home, giving Marty Pattin, 5-3, the only run he needed in his five-hit performance and first shutout since he pitched Boston to a 14-0 triumph over Detroit on Aug. 24, 1973.

After John Mayberry grounded out, scoring Otis, Solaita walked, and Fran Healy drove in McRae with a single. Cookie Rojas then connected for a double off Ryan, 10-6, scoring Solaita.

Solaita hit his first home run in the sixth with McRae on base and his second in the eighth, a solo blast.

Otis and other Royals held the old record jointly with four runs scored.

A crowd of 26,227—16,368 of them paid—was disappointed. After two straight defeats, they figured Ryan would be ripe for one.

California Manager Dick Williams said there was no doubt the spotlight focused on Ryan could be a factor in the pitcher's ineffectiveness of late.

Injury forces Ryan to sidelines

The California Angeles' trainer (left) talks with the team's ace right-hander Nolan Ryan in the third inning about a pulled muscle in his groin, while working against the Kansas City Royals. Kansas City got to Ryan for four runs on as many hits and was charged with the loss in a 13-0 Royals' rout, working only three innings.

Cards find Pittsburgh has pitching to back up power

PITTSBURGH (AP) — There's a school of thought that the Pittsburgh Pirates are a first-place team with second-rate pitching.

"That's a lot of bull," Jim Rooker said Wednesday night after his six-hitter helped the Pirates to a 9-3 baseball victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Pirates, who backed Rooker with 17 hits, have batted over 300 as a team in winning 17 of their last 23 games.

Cardinal pitcher Lynn McGlothen suggested after beating the Pirates here Tuesday night that Pittsburgh's hitters were "carrying" the club's pitchers.

"I don't think their pitching is that good," McGlothen said. "How can you say we don't have a good staff when we're leading our division? You can score a lot of runs and still lose 9-8," responded Rooker.

"Look at their club. Who do they have? I think he (McGlothen) should worry more about their pitching than our pitching," Rooker added.

Rooker, 5-3, admitted he has been sub-par this season. He also acknowledged that Ken Brett and Dock Ellis have been hampered by injuries.

"The injuries have hurt us, but it's not like we've been getting our tails knocked off," he said.

"The guys who've been filling in have done a good job, and when we're healthy how can you knock us?"

Meanwhile, nobody is questioning the Pirates' hitting.

They scored four runs in the first inning off loser Ron Reed with the help of a wild pitch, a passed ball, an error and four singles, including a two-run poke by Bill Robinson.

"Hitting is contagious on this club," said Robinson, who also singled home a run in the Pirates' three-run eighth inning.

Ed Kirkpatrick, subbing for Richie Zisk in left, had two singles and two doubles for the Pirates, while Manny Sanguillen and Dave Parker added three hits each.

Webster signs five-year pact with ABA Nuggets

DENVER (AP) — Marvin Webster, "The Human Eraser" from Morgan State, says he's signed a five-year contract with the Denver Nuggets and hopes to help the Nuggets win the American Basketball Association championship next season.

Webster refused Wednesday night to disclose the contract's monetary arrangements, but published reports put them at $1.2 million to $1.5 million. Bob King, the Nuggets' assistant general manager, said earlier that those figures were "good ballpark" estimates.

"I think I made the right decision," Webster said in a telephone interview from his hotel room. "I think Atlanta is a very good place, but here was where I wanted to play. I feel like it's the place for me."

The Nuggets drafted Webster, whose colorful nickname derives from his shot-blocking prowess, in the first round of the ABA draft. The Atlanta Hawks of the rival National Basketball Association waited until the second round of the NBA draft to choose him, opting in the first round for the Collegiate Player of the Year, David Thompson of North Carolina State.

Webster said he chose Denver not because of the offered contract but because "they were very interested in me as a ballplayer." He said money "wasn't a factor. There wasn't much of a difference."

The 7-foot Morgan State graduate is expected to give the Nuggets needed height on the front line. They won the Western Division championship of the ABA last season with 6-10 Mike Green as their tallest man. Green, at 200 pounds, provides much less bulk than does Webster.

"I'd like to win the championship next year," Webster said. He said he plans to return to his home in Baltimore today, then come to Denver permanently in August to prepare for the ABA season.

In signing with Denver, Webster ignored last-minute pleas from Hawks' Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons; John Wilcox, owner-president of the financially troubled Atlanta club; and Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson to sign an NBA contract.

Pettit keeps up torrid hitting pace in BJ loop

Randy Pettit is picking up this summer where he left off in the spring high school baseball season.

Pettit, playing in his first full season in the Central Missouri Ban Johnson League, leads the nine-team loop in hitting with an average of .588.

Pettit, who can play anywhere in the infield or outfield, led the Smith-Cotton Tigers in hitting his senior year.

Sedalia's 5-1 division-leading record is reflected in this week's statistics released Thursday.

Following Pettit in hitting is Noland Schubert, who is hitting at an even .500 clip. Dane Henningsen is sixth in the league with a mark of .428, while Brian Kennon is tied for eighth in the loop with his .400 mark.

Jim Sanders is ninth in the league with 3.91.

Pettit, along with Schubert and Sanders rank 1-2 the CMBJ in total hits. Pettit has 10, while second spot is shared by Schubert and Sanders with nine each.

Schubert, Sanders and Pettit are tied for third on the RBI list with six apiece.

Kennon tops the league in triples with three, while Pettit, Sanders and Kennon are locked in a four-way tie for the lead in doubles with three each.

Sedalia's powerful offense, which is hitting for a team average of .324, is reflected in the runs scored category. Sedalia has chased in 54 runs in its first six games, 12 of which have been scored by Sanders.

In the pitching department, Paul Kostopolus leads the loop in victories with three wins and no losses. He ranks third with his earned run average of 1.88. Following Kostopolus is Bob Pledge, who has an ERA of 2.03.

Kostopolus and Pledge are third and fourth respectively on the strike out list with 28 and 21. Kostopolus, along with Doug Frevert of New Franklin and Dan Bestgen of Tipton are the busiest pitchers in the league with 24 innings of work each.

Smith hired at CMSU

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — Tom Smith, assistant basketball coach at Iowa State for the past four years, was named head coach Wednesday at Central Missouri State.

Smith, 30, played basketball at Valparaiso under Gene Bartow, who has just assumed the head coaching job at UCLA. Smith stayed on as an assistant at Valparaiso for four years, then moved to Drake to work under Maury John.

Smith, who also holds a master's degree from Indiana State, went with John to Iowa State, but spent the past year as Coach Ken Trickey's assistant following John's death.

"Tom is extremely well qualified for the job," Trickey said Wednesday. "He will do outstanding work for Central Missouri State."

"You always like to see people who work for you get good jobs," Trickey said. "We hate to lose him, but it is a great opportunity for him."

Patrick, 29, is the son of Lynn Patrick, former NHL star and now executive vice president of the Blues, and grandson of Lester Patrick, for whom one of the NHL divisions is named. His best scoring year was 1972-73 when he got 42 points for the California Golden Seals.

Powis, 26, scored 31 points for the Scouts last season.

Blues ship two players to Scouts for Lynn Powis

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Scouts obtained Denis Dupere and Craig Patrick and an undisclosed amount of cash in a National League Hockey deal with St. Louis Wednesday.

The Blues got Lynn Powis and the Scouts' second round pick in the 1976 amateur draft.

The deal, made at the league meeting in Montreal, was announced by the Scouts' headquarters here.

The 27-year-old Dupere went to the Blues in midseason from the Washington and finished as the team's fifth-leading scorer with 44 points. He was the Washington representative on the all-star team in 1974.

Denevi signed to Royals farm club

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Royals announced Wednesday they signed Mike Denevi, second baseman from Santa Clara University in California, and four pitchers picked in baseball's June draft of free agents.

Denevi was their first selection in the secondary phase of the draft. He is 22, played 54 games for Santa Clara this spring, hit .290, batted in 27 runs and had a .982 fielding percentage.

The four pitchers are Richard Gale, 21, a right hander from the University of New Hampshire; Daniel Garcia, 21, a right hander from Queens College in New York; Henry Greene, 19, a left hander from Bluffton, S. C.; and John Hart, 21, a right hander from Mercer University in Vermont.

All five will report immediately to the Sarasota Royals of the Gulf Coast Rookie League. The club is managed by Gary Blaylock and starts play on June 27.

Kansas City has signed nine of its 25 selections in the regular phase of the draft and one of three in the "secondary phase."

Gale was their fifth selection in the regular phase. They picked up Garcia in the 11th round, Greene in the 15th and Hart in the 19th.

CFL cancels all-star game

MONTREAL (AP) — The Canadian Football League's annual all-star game scheduled for the Montreal Autostade next Tuesday was canceled Wednesday due to lack of interest.

Only about 2,000 advance tickets were sold for the game pitting a CFL all-star team against the Montreal Alouettes, the 1974 Grey Cup champions.

MONTREAL (AP) — While the National Hockey League board of governors huddled in conferences on how to preserve their bankrupt Pittsburgh franchise, Penguins' General Manager Jack Button indicated that the club is for sale at a bargain price.

"Obviously time is of the essence as far as including the Penguins in the 1975-76 schedule," said Button in a statement released at the league's annual meetings, which concluded here Wednesday, a day ahead of schedule. "As far as I am concerned, it is imperative that I encourage any offers that may be acceptable to the court from any responsible party who would qualify for membership in the National Hockey League."

The Penguins filed for bankruptcy last week under a federal court agreement which also stipulated that none of the team's assets be sold. The action left Button in receivership and gave the club until Sept. 30 to get its financial affairs in order.

However, NHL President Clarence Campbell said schedules will be made up in August and if the Penguins and the also-indebted California Seals are not solvent by the area of August 1, they could be disbanded.

A Penguin spokesman said Button has talked with some prospective purchasers at the meetings, but he knew of no serious negotiations.

Unlike the Pittsburgh dilemma, Campbell said there is no deadline for purchase of the Seals. He said the NHL was "making fine progress" toward the sale of the league-operated Seals to a group headed by San Francisco businessman Mel Swig.

"By our standards and his, he is 90 per cent ready," Campbell said.

Swig is trying to build a 20,000-seat arena for the club, and reportedly wants to move the franchise as soon as possible from its current location in the Oakland-Alameda Coliseum across the bay to San Francisco.

The trading market, conspicuously quiet in the first two days of league meetings, came alive Wednesday with a flurry of transactions.

The New York Rangers traded left wings Ted Irvine and Bert Wilson and right wing Jerry Butler to the St. Louis Blues for promising young goalie John Davidson and veteran right wing Bill Collins.

Sources reported the Blues-Rangers deal was predicated on the Blues' acquisition earlier in the day of the negotiation rights to goalie Gil Gratton — a World Hockey Association renegade who was released from his contract by the Toronto Toros.

Reports could not be confirmed that the New York Rangers had signed Pat Hickey and Wayne Dillion of the Toros, both of whom have one year remaining on their contracts.

In another trade, the Kansas City Scouts acquired forwards Denis Dupere, Craig Patrick and cash from the Blues for forward Lynn Powis.

Superstar held scoreless

Pele's play paves way for 2-0 Cosmos' victory in NASL play

NEW YORK (AP) — Pele may be a superstar, but he's not necessarily a superman.

Though Brazil's "Black Pearl" did not score any goals or assists, magnificent or otherwise, in his professional debut with the New York Cosmos Wednesday, he did direct the North American Soccer League team to a handy 2-0 triumph over the Toronto Metro-Croatia and drew a sellout crowd of 22,500 in the process.

"I might not have scored," said Pele afterward, "but I think that I made the Toronto defense spend two men on me and sometimes three. Both goals were as a result of a man being free on these types of plays."

Pele assumed the role of on-the-field coach in the first half and most of the second, directing the movement of his teammates. But he failed in three easy scoring attempts, most of which went wide, including a direct kick from twenty yards out with Toronto goalie Zelko Bilecki out of position.

When asked about the trio of mishaps, the 34-year-old soccer legend said, "It's not the first time and it won't be the last."

"I still have to get adjusted to the American ball which is lighter than the ball we play with in Brazil," he said. "I feel this will take me about another week or so. I feel real good physically."

The Cosmos finally broke through with 12:51 gone in the second half. New York's Barry Mahy passed to Julio Correa, who headed a shot past Bilecki for the Cosmos' first goal.

At the 17 minute mark, Pele passed to Correa, who fed Manoel Maria. Maria was fouled inside the penalty area and Mordechai Shpigler converted the penalty shot to make it 2-0.

The win raised the Cosmos record to 4-6, while Toronto is now 4-7.

Productive night for Lynn

Rookie outfielder Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox tied a team record in Wednesday night's 15-1 rout over the Detroit Tigers with 10 runs batted in. He moves into the Sox record books with Rudy York and Norm Zaichin, who knocked in 10 each in 1946 and 1955 respectively.

Barry balking over pay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rick Barry says he is not being paid "commensurate with my abilities," and so the star forward of the National Basketball Association champion Golden State Warriors is looking elsewhere — to television.

"I would like to set myself up financially so I wouldn't have to worry about things five years down the line," the 31-year-old Barry said Wednesday. "I'm not the type of player who's making an astronomical amount of money that some other players are making, and what I'm looking for is security."

Barry emphasized, "This isn't just a ploy to make the Warriors offer me more, but I'm sure that it does put the Warriors in a difficult position."

He's got a summer contract with CBS and starts work this weekend, at the National AAU track championships in Eugene, Ore.

"I'm not going to be a color man," he said, "so I won't have to know track like an expert. I'll do interviews and some of the races. Sometimes I think it's a detriment to have a sportscaster who can step on the toes of the expert."

Barry, a 1964 graduate of Miami where he took numerous courses in communications, worked as a sportscaster for WABC-TV in New York when he was a member of the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association, doing the nightly sports reports during the off-season.

He also did the color commentary for the NBA playoffs two years ago, but missed the chance to do it again last season when he led the Warriors to a four-game sweep of the Washington Bullets.

Recommend Cincy for boxing trials

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Boxing Committee voted Wednesday to recommend to the Olympic Committee Board of Directors that the 1976 trials be held in Riverfront Coliseum in Cincinnati June 9-12.

Boxing committee chairman Matthew Cusack announced they were also recommending the training camp be held at the University of Vermont, in Burlington beginning June 13.

Five cities bid for the Olympic trials and two locations for the training camp.

The USOC Board of Directors will meet in Colorado Springs, June 27-28 to act on the recommendations.

Racing season

extended 2 days

LINCOLN DOWN, R.I. (AP) — The current Lincoln Downs meeting, scheduled to end Saturday, was granted an additional two nights of racing Wednesday by the Rhode Island Racing and Athletics Commission.

The commission approved the addition programs, planned for next Monday and Tuesday, in view of the delayed opening of nearby Narragansett Park.

Paul Warfield of the Miami Dolphins has tallied 77 touchdowns on pass receptions in 11 years as a pro.

Caber tossing isn't Brian Oldfield's bag

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — Brian Oldfield is generally regarded as the world's best shot put, but he needs to brush up on his "caber"ing.

Oldfield set a British professional all-comers record of 73 feet, 1 inch in the shot Wednesday night at an International Track Association meet at Meadowbank Stadium, on the outskirts of this ancient Scottish capital.

But he could finish no better than second in the caber toss, an ancient Scottish sport that was added to this meet, the first event held by the ITA professionals this side of the Atlantic.

Oldfield — who put the shot 75 feet in El Paso, Tex., last month — finished second in the caber to Briton Brian Anderson.

The caber is a slightly tapered trunk of a young tree, something like a telegraph pole, that tradition — not the Amateur Athletic Union or National Collegiate Athletic Association — demands be between 16 and 20 feet long. Caber means pole or beam in the Gaelic tongue.

It is cupped in the hands and tossed on the run from a marked spot. It must turn over in the air and land across another line with the tapered end pointing away from the tosser.

The winner is the man who tosses with the best and easiest style, according to ancient Highland traditions, and whose caber falls straightest in a direct line from him.

In the shot, Oldfield, 30, beat the 70-foot mark three times in six throws using his revolutionary discus-style rotating throw. He easily beat the efforts of Randy Matson, 66-9, and Ken Salb, 63-4.

Another top performance was turned in by John Raditch, who leaped a pro record of 7-2¼ in the high jump. That was still four inches below the world record, held by Dwight Stones, an amateur.

The Jac Pac 175 Air Adjustable Shock Absorber System puts you in control of your car's rear ride height. From your driver's seat, you dial the air pressure you want. There's no guesswork ... no walking back and forth to the trunk to add or release air. When added height is no longer needed or desired, you simply dial the pressure down again.

A special feature of the Jac Pac 175 System is the pressure bleed-off valve located in the dash-mounted regulator. This valve helps maintain a more constant air pressure in the shocks by releasing excess pressure caused by traveling over bumpy roads.

What good is a guarantee on the muffler when your tailpipe goes?

There's more to an exhaust system than a muffler. There's a tailpipe, exhaust pipe, clamps and hangers. And statistics tell us that the tailpipe often goes before the muffler.

Yet most of the people who repair exhaust systems only give a lifetime guarantee on their mufflers. If you have to buy a tailpipe and it goes, guess who pays? And you could pay as much as $35.

We give you a 100% guarantee on 100% of our work.

dummy. But Lancelot noticed if he could bring home five club tricks, he would have time to knock out the ace of diamonds and score the slam.

So Lancelot won the heart in dummy, led a low club and finessed his 10 spot. Then he played his ace of clubs. The queen dropped and Lancelot spread his hand to claim the slam.

As expected Lancelot had made the right play in clubs. His play was going to win if East held two or three clubs to the queen: a finesse against West would only work against a 3-3 break.

THE DODGE BOYS MAKE A GOOD DEAL EVEN BETTER.

$200 CASH BACK ON DARTS.

Get $200 cash back directly from Chrysler Corporation.

It's no secret that Dodge Dart is one of the smartest car buys to begin with. But did you know that the Dodge Boys are making a good buy even better with $200 cash back on Darts right now? That's right. Make your best deal, then get $200 cash back from Chrysler Corporation when you buy or lease any '75 Dodge Dart in stock.

Dart—It's value packed.

$200 cash back is only one of the great things about Dart. It's got a Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price that starts at $3269*. We repeat only $3269. On the small car that gives you more room inside than Nova or Maverick. A bigger trunk, too. And Dart six-cylinder got better mileage than Nova or Maverick with their most popular six-cylinder engines in 1975 EPA tests.

Limited offer.

Rebates are for a limited time only, and for retail customers only. One to a customer at participating Dodge Dealers. So, make a good buy even better—put your tax rebate money on Dart. Now, more than ever. Number one for the money is Dodge.

*MSRP for a 75 Dart sedan. Not included are state and local taxes, license and title fees, destination charge, and Dealer prep. if any.

NO.1 FOR THE MONEY IS DODGE.

Mozambique ready to shed colonial ties

By LARRY HEINZERLING
Associated Press Writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — War-weary Mozambique is quietly dismantling the symbols of Portuguese colonialism as it prepares for its independence next week.

The nation's 8.5 million people will shed nearly 500 years of white domination next Wednesday and get a government run by the Front for the Liberation of Mozambique, made up of Africans and known as Frelimo.

The Marxist-oriented movement, led by bearded 41-year-old Samora Machel, fought a guerrilla war against Portugal for more than a decade.

The African takeover in Mozambique, compared to the bloody strife in Angola, Portugal's bigger and richer territory on African's west coast, has been calm and orderly.

A transitional Portuguese-Frelimo government, led by Machel's chief lieutenant, Joaquim Chissano, has paved the way for a smooth handover of power.

Machel is expected to make a triumphant entry into Lourenco Marques, the capital, on independence day to lead the celebrations.

Virtually all of Portugal's 60,000 soldiers in the territory, with the exception of a handful of advisers, are scheduled to leave.

How much popular support Frelimo enjoys is difficult to gauge and there has been no indication the movement plans to hold elections.

Frelimo's ranks consist largely of Makonde tribesmen from northern Mozambique who traditionally have been opposed by some of the country's other tribes, especially the Makua, who make up 25 per cent of the population.

Whether Frelimo will be able to maintain tribal peace, a problem in virtually every black African nation, remains to be seen.

Frelimo had only an estimated 1,000 trained administrators when last year's military coup in Lisbon signaled the collapse of the Portuguese empire. But foreign diplomats in Lourenco Marques say the party has organized itself with speed and efficiency.

Machel, at one time commander of Frelimo's 10,000-man guerrilla army, has declared Mozambique will be a revolutionary society aimed at creating a "new man free from exploitation."

The party's philosophy expresses a strong Marxist ideology closer to Maoist thought than most other forms of "African socialism."

Although a Marxist Machel firmly denies any ties to Moscow or Peking.

"Frelimo is a Mozambican party," he once told newsmen. "It's orientation and personality are Mozambican."

Some Western diplomats, however, express fears that the Soviet Union may win agreements to use Mozambique's ports to boost its naval strength in the Indian Ocean. But they also point out an intense Soviet-Chinese rivalry is under way in Mozambique to win influence.

They say this competition is reflected by internal tensions within Frelimo itself with some top officials leaning toward Peking and others favoring Moscow.

Machel is an admirer of President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and is likely to follow his policies of "African socialism" including the creation of agricultural communes.

Individualism is condemned and Frelimo says communication with the masses must be improved "through the indoctrination of journalists."

The provisional government already has decreed jail sentences of up to eight years for anyone "sabotaging the decolonization process." There is no trial and no appeal.

Mozambique will be a one-party state ruled by a central committee, a political committee and a military committee. Machel is expected to head all three.

About 90 per cent of the population is illiterate and few Africans are trained to take up jobs being deserted by whites.

No up-to-date statistics are available but the country is plagued by a shortage of foreign reserves, a large trade deficit, widespread unemployment and inflation.

Of an estimated 200,000 whites in the country, some 20,000 have left, taking with them special skills needed to help run the government bureaucracy, public services and commerce.

The latest estimate for the per capita income is $200 a year compared to well over $4,000 in the United States.

Mozambique is the world's largest producer of cashew nuts and other major exports include cotton, sugar, tea and tobacco.

Accident victim 'wakes up' — eight years later

SEYMOUR, Tex. (AP) — Gene Tipps woke up last month, yawned, looked around and discovered the hippie movement with its flower children was gone.

The Vietnam war was over.

His old girl friends had long since married and had children.

He was looking for flattop haircuts and 25-cent gas.

"Last thing I remember is that we were all kids and single I know I'm 28, but to me, I'm still 20," says Tipps who "awoke" after eight years of almost constant sleeping.

Tipps was critically injured in a one-car accident May 21, 1967. He was suffering from shock and acute swelling of the brain associated with trauma. Doctors held little hope of recovery.

He was comatose for three weeks following the accident but after he came out of the coma he suffered from complete amnesia.

Dr. C. M. Randal, who performed a routine gall bladder operation on Tipps May 16, said Tipps lapsed into a void following the accident and was unresponsive and uncooperative.

"All he wanted to do was sleep," says Randal.

Tipps stayed in the hospital for two months following the car accident and was then sent home for treatment.

"We would get him up and feed him and no matter what we did, he would go lay down and go to sleep," says his mother, Mrs. O. E. Tipps.

But then last month while recuperating from the gall bladder surgery, Tipps brushed away a nurses' efforts to give him some medication and he snapped out of his eight-year daze.

"Mother, I only want to talk," he said.

Tipps thought he had been asleep two weeks. He doesn't remember when he used to sit in a chair, staring, or his parents' efforts in the past five years to exercise him on a rowing-bicycle machine to maintain muscle tone.

"There's no medical explanation," says Randal, who adds that the gall bladder operation had nothing to do with Tipps waking up.

Randal said he gets at least one inquiry a day from people who have friends or relatives in a condition similar to the one Tipps was in, but he said he tells them there is nothing he can do.

"I can hardly believe Gene is back. I still can't find the words to express the way I feel about the change," his mother said.

When he awoke, Tipps' only thought was to notify Cisco Junior College of his whereabouts so he could graduate as he had planned in May 1967. The former dean's list student saw his graduation certificate from Cisco Junior College recently.

Now he wants to complete his business administration education at West Texas State University. He plans to enter this fall. However, his education plans must wait a while because he has little muscular control of his left eye, which a Wichita Falls doctor will examine.

Energy bill clears House after fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — A politically torn House passed its largely gutted energy tax bill Thursday and sent it to the Senate after rejecting a Republican attempt to return it to House committees for more surgery.

The House killed the GOP's back-to-committee maneuver after Ways and Means Committee chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said such a step would be "a dead end — there's no way we can go back to committee and take a new turn" on this hotly contested issue.

Ullman insisted that this bill provides "the basic foundation for an energy policy" which would show the world that the United States is starting in "a new direction."

But Rep. Barber B. Conable, R-N.Y., recommending returning this measure to Ways and Means and to Commerce, the two major House committees handling energy legislation, claimed this bill represented an American "non-policy" on energy.

Conable's maneuver failed, 270-150.

A 3-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline taxes had been killed earlier 209 to 187.

but Speaker Carl Albert said before work resumed that no attempt would be made to restore it. "What we want now is to pass the bill."

In its two weeks of action on the energy measure, the House eliminated proposals for higher federal gasoline taxes and for a tax on gas-guzzling new cars. Instead, the House adopted a non-tax plan to use civil financial penalties on auto makers to enforce a system of mandatory automobile fuel economy standards.

Chief remaining parts of the bill would impose flexible oil import quotas and set up a new system of oil import duties in place of President Ford's tariff program. It would place a tax on some industrial use of oil and natural gas, create an energy trust fund to finance the search for new technology, and provide special tax cuts for such efforts as insulating a home. Most of the measures are intended to discourage use of energy and create incentives to find new energy sources.

Earlier Thursday, Albert told a group of Democratic statewide elected officials that there will be energy legislation "only when the President and the Democratic majority (in Congress) can agree on a compromise package and then work together for its adoption."

He said Republicans in both the House and the Senate "have consistently opposed every effort to find such a compromise. The White House has done nothing of a constructive nature to assemble the broad coalition that will be needed to pass a comprehensive and effective energy bill."

City plans to send proposal to state

The City Council continued to pave the way toward an industrial park in Sedalia by formally approving a resolution Thursday to submit its plans for a $380,000 general obligation bond issue to state authorities.

All six council members present at the 5:15 p.m. special meeting, cast 'yes' votes on the resolution. Councilmen Carl Franklin, Third Ward, and David Curry, Fourth Ward, did not attend the meeting.

The special session was called because plans for the park must be sent to the state Department of Commerce and Industrial Development for approval by the Industrial Development Commission. The plans must be received by the commission for consideration at least two weeks before its next meeting, which is scheduled for early July.

Mayor Jerry Jones said the application outlines the description, cost and source of funds for the industrial park project.

Jones said the Department of Commerce and Industrial Development must approve any industrial bond issue in Missouri before an election can be held.

Should state authorities approve the plan, the election, which is set for Aug. 5, must then be authorized by the council.

John Hequembourg, industrial development director, said he expects the commission to approve the city's plans.

Hequembourg reiterated that there will be no tax increase if the bond proposal is approved by voters. Instead, the debt will be repaid with city sales tax revenue, similar to the manner in which the Municipal Building bond debt is being retired.

The Sedalia Economic Development Board chose a 100-acre site at $1,500 per acre for the proposed park, located north of Highway 65 and bordered by Grand Avenue and the Lexington Branch of the Missouri-Pacific Railroad.

The land, owned by John Van Dyne, 1600 North Grand, was offered with an option to buy an additional 100 acres for $1,650 per acre at a later date.

Drainage work continues

State Highway Department crews have been working along the north side of East Broadway, near the underpass, for the past week to eliminate a drainage problem there. A spokesman said the old railroad yard located north of the highway reportedly had an old spring in it. Constant resurfacing and patching of holes on the north side of the road has been needed because of seepage in the area. The new drain being installed should alleviate the problem, it was reported.

Bond tells Warsaw crowd:

Pride in one's city key to local growth

By TOM MAUPIN

Democrat-Capitol Staff Writer

WARSAW — "The attitude of local leaders and citizens is the key to a city's growth," Gov. Christopher S. Bond told about 150 persons at a "town hall forum" Thursday afternoon at the Benton County Courthouse here.

The governor said the nearby Harry S. Truman Dam project is expected to draw thousands of persons a day to Benton County and it could attract industry to the area.

"The final decision of industry locating in a new area is the view of the community," Bond said. "People will come into your community and talk with the citizens about how they feel toward the city. If the local attitude is bad toward the community, industry knows its employees will not be happy there."

Bond said that through the state's Jobs for Missouri program, state government will "do all we can to help ... and we hope if we can, you will let us know."

He said the top priority of his administration has been to bring new jobs into Missouri. The governor said that 23,000 new jobs have been created in the state since Jan. 1, 1973. The administration has even sought an overseas office to attract foreign business, but Bond said the legislature failed to appropriate the money for the office this year.

State Sen. John C. Ryan, R-Sedalia, who attended the meeting, described the recently adjourned Missouri General Assembly as a "do nothing legislature."

Ryan said the "average person will agree it was a very controversial session" because of a gun control bill, the death penalty bill and the Equal Rights Amendment.

The veto of the legislators' pay raise bill by Gov. Bond was praised by Ryan, who called it "a very fine decision."

Benton County Sheriff Robert Breshears asked Bond whether he plans to sign or veto the death penalty bill, which was approved by both state houses this past term.

Bond said he is committed to study material supplied by both advocates and opponents of the bill and probably will "act on it next week." He gave no indication of how he would act.

In answering a question concerning the state's criminal code reform, Bond said, "We still have a code prohibiting the driving of a stage coach while intoxicated."

Bond said the state badly needs to update the code "but unfortunately it was

Grain probe widening, USDA says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials said Thursday their probe of a grain export scandal is widening and that flaws still exist in inspection procedures.

"Investigations are currently being conducted in a number of cities based on new leads that have been developed," said Agriculture Undersecretary J. Phil Campbell.

The cities were identified as Philadelphia, Baltimore and Duluth, Minn., port cities which harbor grain elevator service.

In addition, Campbell said irregularities may extend beyond commercial shipments of grain to include Food for Peace cargoes.

Campbell and other department officials testified before the Senate subcommittee on foreign agriculture policy, which is investigating allegations of bribery and other forms of corruption among federally licensed inspectors who approve the quality of grain sent to foreign purchasers.

The Justice Department has obtained 15 indictments of inspectors in New Orleans and five in Houston, in a probe that has involved the Agriculture Department, the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and U.S. Attorney's offices in the two cities.

Shoe factory workers accept policy change

Town and Country Shoes Inc., employees who are members of Teamsters Local 534 voted in favor of a staggered vacation policy Thursday at the Ramada Inn.

The union voted to replace the traditional two-week shutdown of the local plant in the summer with a staggered vacation plan.

Lester Hepburn, Local 534 secretary-treasurer, told The Democrat-Capitol Thursday night that "some of the people were a little unhappy because they had made (vacation) plans ... but times are tough."

He declined to give the exact tally of members voting for and against the issue, saying this information was "confidential."

John Lipscomb, St. Louis, president of the company, had said earlier that if workers did not agree to the revised staggered vacation plan, the company may have been forced to close permanently. The staggered vacation plan was developed approximately 10 days ago. Lipscomb was not available for comment Thursday night.

In recent months, the company has operated on a reduced work-week schedule to minimize the number of lay-offs created by declining business. However, it was reported 50 workers recently returned to their jobs. The Sedalia plant currently employs about 360 factory workers. All are members of the union.

The vacation change calls for staggered vacation periods in which only 10 per cent of the employees at a time would not report for work. Under this schedule, the factory maintains its regular format and will not be forced to close entirely.

Cambodian genocide

Those mild-mannered Cambodian Communists we heard so much about before the fall of Phnom Penh are now going about their business with a ruthlessness that would make even Mao Tse-tung blush.

The London Daily Telegraph reports that tens of thousands of Cambodians have died in the course of a "peasant revolution" ordered by the Khmer Rouge. "Cambodia," the paper's correspondent writes from Bangkok, "is now in the midst of what may prove to be one of the most profound human tragedies of recent times."

What has happened is that the Red conquerors have herded whole populations out into the countryside to "cleanse" them of their bourgeois ways. This has included the old, the infirm, even hospital patients.

Cholera and starvation also have claimed large numbers of refugees, the British paper reports. All transportation has ground to a halt because of lack of gasoline.

Some observers have termed the Cambodian upheavals nothing less than genocide.

One recalls the pronouncements of various liberal congressmen during the debate on aid for Cambodia a few months ago. Then the catch phrase was that a Communist victory would bring an "end to the agony."

Instead of an end, it marked a new beginning.

The F.M.N.M.S.B.R. case

Tuesday was an historic day in Congress. The House actually voted to ABOLISH a federal agency.

This was the Federal Metal and Nonmetallic Mine Safety Board of Review. Its executive secretary, Jubal Hale, freely admits that the board has done virtually nothing since its creation four years ago. Hale said he has spent most of his time reading books and listening to Beethoven records. For this he was paid nearly $20,000 a year.

In digging up Hale and the F.M.N.M.S.B.R., the taxpayers just may have uncovered a rich lode. How about an amnesty period during which any other federal bureaucrats that don't have anything to do may come out of the woodwork and be honorably discharged?

Trouble is, you'd probably have to create another agency just to handle the paperwork.

CIA not the monster the Times depicts

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — The Rockefeller Commission released its report on the Central Intelligence Agency on the night of June 10, and on the morning of June 11 the New York Times almost broke an arm patting itself on the back. It was a remarkable acrobatic exercise; it merits a round of faint applause.

The Times started all this business about the CIA with a spread-eagled story by Seymour Hersh on Dec. 22, in which the Times again lauded the Times. The page 22 encomium asserted that the commission's report "affirmed in virtually every respect an account in the New York Times last Dec. 22 of a 'massive, illegal domestic intelligence operation against the anti-war movement and other dissident groups in the United States.'"

Kilpatrick

In its lead story of June 11, the Times exulted that the Rockefeller Commission's report "confirmed the basic elements of an article in the New York Times last Dec. 22 that quoted sources as saying that the CIA had engaged in a 'massive, illegal domestic intelligence operation against the anti-war movement and other groups.'"

If you perceive that a couple of elements are missing, your perception is functioning nicely. Curiously, these identical elements also were missing from a story on page 22, in which the Times again lauded the Times. The page 22 encomium asserted that the commission's report "affirmed in virtually every respect an account in the New York Times last Dec. 22 of a 'massive, illegal domestic intelligence operation against the anti-war movement and other dissident groups in the United States.'"

Suppose we get this affair in perspective. The commission report does not confirm that the CIA conducted these "massive"

and "illegal" operations in "direct violation of its charter." On the contrary, the report emphasizes that the CIA's charter is vague, ambiguous, and subject to conflicting interpretations by reasonably minded men. The report does assert that over the past 28 years, a few men in the CIA did a few things that were "plainly unlawful."

What about a key element in the original Times story, that these horrid things happened "during the Nixon administration?" That element seems to have dropped down the memory hole. The report makes it clear that Operation CHAOS, as it came to be known, began on Aug. 15, 1967, in response to "continuing, substantial pressure" from President Lyndon Johnson. Yes, the operation continued "during the Nixon administration," but the genesis was with the Democratic administration.

Was the operation "massive?" In terms of the CIA's own commitment, it was minuscule. Fewer than 30 agents were assigned to the project. At its peak, the staff totaled 52. In terms of the intelligence gathered, we may make our own judgments. Probably half a million persons were involved between 1967 and 1972 in anti-war dissidence. The CIA indexed 300,000 names. But "personality files" were compiled on only 7,200.

Was the operation "illegal?" In the commission's view, "some domestic activities of Operation CHAOS unlawfully exceeded the CIA's statutory authority." But that finding has to be set against the commission's finding that the mission itself — to study foreign influence on domestic dissidence — was proper.

The great bulk of the CIA's investigation was lawful, prudent, and discreet. Files were kept under absolute security. The commission could find no evidence that the CIA at any time engaged in any "personal or electronic surveillance, wiretaps, or unauthorized entries against any dissident group or individual."

Against the Times' exalted opinion of the Times' allegations, let me venture this observation: A fair reading of the entire commission report, taking the findings by their four corners, provides persuasive evidence that in its domestic activities, the CIA has acted, on the whole, with reason and with restraint. The opportunities for abuse, over a quarter of a century, were enormous; the actual abuses were few.

Yes, the CIA is fairly subject to criticism for its excesses, and for knuckling under to the pressures applied by successive presidents. It is a human institution, subject to human error. But on balance, and considering the dirty, delicate, dangerous nature of its assignment, the CIA — at least in its domestic performance — merits far more credit than blame.

Art Buchwald Top-level strategy on nukes

WASHINGTON — The good news from the Pentagon this week is that the Air Force has just announced it will start training its crews to fight a "limited nuclear war" in case the United States should want to exercise that option.

Buchwald

While this is an encouraging sign, no one in Washington is quite sure what a limited nuclear war is and unfortunately neither is anyone in Moscow.

"Isn't a limited nuclear war like being a little bit pregnant?" I asked a source high in government circles.

"Certainly not. At the moment small nuclear wars have been considered unthinkable. But we hope that attitude will change, and countries will start thinking about them instead of large nuclear wars that could wipe out a continent."

Everyone is for small nuclear wars," I said, "as opposed to large ones. But how do you persuade the other side that you're not engaging in a large one? How will we know if we're attacked with nuclear weapons that the Soviets or even the French have no intention of destroying the entire country?"

"It won't be easy," the source said. "But if we announce a new nuclear strategy which is more flexible, then the Soviets will adjust their strategy accordingly. For example, suppose the Russians launched an attack on Mobile, Ala.; we would retaliate by hitting Minsk. If they then hit White Plains, N.Y., we would drop nuclear weapons on Kiev. That would be considered a limited nuclear war. As long as there weren't attacks on our major cities, both sides could live with it."

"I can see that. But how will we know that they are only engaging in a limited nuclear war?"

"The source seemed irritated. 'That's what the hot line is for, stupid,' he said. 'The Soviets would alert us as to what cities they intend to bomb and we would alert them about cities we would hit. If they double-cross us and bomb New Orleans, instead of Mobile, we'll just lay a little of nuclear bomb on Leningrad. Our insurance is that they don't want their entire country destroyed and neither do we.'

"I guess we could all live without Mobile and White Plains," I said. "But by changing our strategy from the deterrent of mutual destruction to limited nuclear war, aren't we encouraging both sides to start seriously thinking about using 'A' weapons?"

"Yes and no. The important thing is that we must have more options. Right now the only option we have is to use our weapons for all-out destruction. The Soviets are also stuck with the same options. But, let's face it, if we could use our atomic weapons just to knock out a few Soviet factory towns in the Ukraine, the Russians would only be under an obligation to destroy some place like Detroit."

"Nobody would miss Detroit," I said. "But suppose we had some Hawks in Congress who got mad and said, 'No one can win a limited nuclear war. We have to go all out or nothing?'"

"You'll get some of that. But no President is going to get us involved in an all-out nuclear war. It would wreck the economy and play havoc with inflation. So no matter how much pressure the Hawks put on, the President will see that an 'A' war doesn't get out of hand."

"Now I know you're going to get mad at me for asking this question," I said. "But suppose one side or the other decides it is losing the limited nuclear war and, rather than face disgrace turns it into mass destruction? What happens to your strategy then?"

"It will never happen."

"How do you know?"

"Because our military people aren't crazy."

"How do you know?"

"Because anyone who comes up with a limited nuclear war plan has to be sane."

"How do you know?"

When Dinadan, the worst player and knight of King Arthur's court, cut the peerless Lancelot as his partner, he had one aim in bidding, which was to get to be dummy.

Hence, when Lancelot responded two notrump to his opening club bid, Dinadan forgot he had opened and raised Lancelot right to six.

A spade lead would have beaten the slam quickly, but the unfortunate Kay, who held the West cards, made the normally correct lead of the jack of hearts.

The kibitzers burst into laughter when they saw the dummy. But Lancelot noticed if he could bring home five club tricks, he would have time to knock out the ace of diamonds and score the slam.

So Lancelot won the heart in dummy, led a low club and finessed his 10 spot. Then he played his ace of clubs. The queen dropped and Lancelot spread his hand to claim the slam.

As expected Lancelot had made the right play in clubs. His play was going to win if East held two or three clubs to the queen; a finesse against West would only work against a 3-3 break.

Two women injured when cars collide

Two women sustained minor injuries in a two-car collision at 2:55 p.m. Wednesday at 32nd and Limit.

Margaret A. Crenshaw, 26, Ionia, and Jeana Eckhoff, Cole Camp, were treated at Bothwell Hospital and released.

According to police, Hazel E. Brown, 1102 New England, was driving north on Limit when her car collided with a southbound vehicle driven by the Crenshaw women.

Police said Mrs. Brown was turning left in front of the Crenshaw vehicle, which was "unable to avoid hitting" the Brown vehicle.

A state-owned light pole on the southwest corner of the intersection was knocked down by the Crenshaw car, police said.

Mrs. Brown received a summons for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Kansas farmers lose millions in bad weather

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Kansas farmers have already lost several millions of dollars to heavy rain, flooding and hail this month, the state director of the Farmers Home Administration said Thursday.

"Many individual farmers have suffered severe economic losses," said Morgan Williams in a public statement.

An assessment of actual damage will come after U.S. Department of Agriculture disaster committees make on farm inspections in each county, he said. He urged farmers who have suffered severe losses to contact their local Farmers Home Administration or Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Office.

Damage from the elements has come to the state's ripening winter wheat crop—largely by far in the nation—as well as newly planted corn, milo and soybean crops, Williams said.

He said initial reports show wheat is down in some areas and washed into the ground.

Mrs. Debra Kay Garber and infant

TIPTON — Mrs. Debra Kay Garber, 18, died Wednesday night in childbirth at the University of Missouri Medical Center, Columbia. The infant, named Christina, also died.

Mrs. Garber was born Jan. 20, 1957, at Suffern, N.Y., daughter of Alvin and Vera Smith. She was married to Randy Garber in Tipton, who survives of the home.

Mrs. Garber was employed at Bothwell Hospital, Sedalia, before her marriage. In addition to her husband, she is survived by her parents, 630 East 16th, Sedalia; two sisters, Teresa Ann Smith and Jennifer Mae Smith, both of 630 East 16th; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Garber, Tipton; and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Branstetter, 1601 East 13th, Sedalia; great-grandparents, Mrs. Bertha Walter, Sedalia; Mrs. Effie Whaley, Sedalia; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fuks, Latham, Mo.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church here with the Rev. Charles Tedder officiating.

Friends may call after 1 p.m. Friday at the Kidwell-Garber Funeral Home, Versailles, and from noon to 1 p.m. Saturday at the church.

Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery near Fortuna.

Police arrest three juveniles after man robbed

Police arrested three juveniles at noon Thursday in connection with thefts this week from two elderly Sedalians. The juveniles were turned over to juvenile authorities, police said.

The youths allegedly robbed their second victim Wednesday afternoon on North Prospect at the railroad tracks. James W. Helsey, 91, 419 North Prospect, was robbed at 1:15 p.m. of $57 in cash by three boys, each between 10 and 12 years old.

Police said they believe the boys are the same ones who took $5 from 86-year-old Mrs. Lena T. Corum, 120 West Seventh, Monday afternoon in an alley near her home.

Helsey told police he was walking near the tracks when the three approached him. One of the boys told Helsey that he had dropped a nickel into Helsey's pocket. The boy then reached into the man's pocket and took his billfold.

The boys ran a short distance away and took the money from the wallet and dropped it. They then ran east along the tracks.

In other police news, two truck trailers were burglarized over the weekend while parked at the offices of St. Louis-Kansas City Express Inc., 421 North Park. A console stereo, valued at $179, was taken from one of the trucks. Police reported that six boxes containing stereos had been opened but only one was taken. The unit taken weighed about 125 pounds.

Rover? Did you take your pill?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The birth control pill is going to the dogs. It can be hidden in the female's food but you're barking up the wrong tree if you think it's likely to control the pet population explosion.

So far, at least, federal guidelines limit its availability to prescription by a veterinarian. It's relatively expensive. And it has to be given to a female dog once a day over an eight-day span at a carefully timed period.

So it's nothing that can be slipped surreptitiously to those millions of stray dogs running around U.S. neighborhoods. And it's not recommended for cats.

Until now the only method of dog birth control has been surgical contraception — spraying and castration. Once done, it's irreversible.

The Food and Drug Administration gave a go-ahead last November to Schering-Plough Corp., Kenilworth, N.J., to market the pill, trade name Ovaban. Sales began in April, a company spokesman said, through veterinarians who were approached by the firm's salesmen.

"Initial response was very good," said the spokesman. He didn't have any actual sales figures.

Researchers have been trying for years to develop an alternative to surgery. At least seven other companies or universities hope for FDA approval of their products — ranging from vaccination against pregnancies to vaginal inserts — later this year or early in 1976.

Nationally, cost for castration of a male dog ranges from about $35 to $45 and spaying of a female $35 to more than $100.

Proposed Israeli border includes captured lands

TEL AVIV (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and his Labor party have defined Israel's permanent borders — including annexation of the Golan Heights and the Gaza Strip — in a peace plan for negotiations with the Arabs, the secretary general of the party said Thursday.

A Syrian leader said in London that his government is determined to regain the Golan Heights in any Middle East settlement. Egypt denounced the plan as "unacceptable maneuvering."

The plan makes the Golan Heights and the Gaza Strip — captured from Syria and Egypt, respectively, in the 1967 war — permanent parts of the State of Israel, said party chief Meir Zarmi.

It establishes the Jordan River as Israel's final security border but leaves the sovereignty of occupied west Jordan open to negotiations, Zarmi told a meeting of Labor party farmers.

Israel will retain a presence in strategic Sharm el Sheikh at the southern end of the Sinai Peninsula but is prepared to negotiate the region's final sovereignty with Egypt, he said. This indicated that Rabin's party was willing to return the rest of the East Sinai Desert and its oilfields to Egypt.

Harmor said the plan was put together in three meetings before Rabin left for talks in Washington with President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

one of the bills that died in the legislature."

Another bill killed in the legislature was a Senate bill on gun control, sponsored by Sen. Franklin Payne, D-St. Louis.

"It was a ridiculous bill which had no chance of passage. It was outlandish and would never have gotten through the legislature and would not have gone beyond my desk if it had," Bond said.

"I know many of you in Benton County are concerned about gun control and I can tell you there is no danger of a confiscatory gun control bill getting through the legislature or anywhere in Missouri," Bond said.

At the end of Bond's appearance, a small boy asked the governor "What brought you down here, all this way?"

Bond told the youngster that he came to Warsaw "to find out the views of the people and what the state government could do for them."

Earlier in the meeting, Bond said there are many problems "that have not made their way to Jefferson City, and they are quite evident around the state."

After leaving Warsaw, Bond went to Warrensburg to speak at the Boys State activities there Thursday night.

He said the meetings were attended by Rabin, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon, Defense Minister Shimon Peres and others, together with executives of the Labor alignment.

Rabin and the party had refrained from drawing specific lines on a map, he said, because these "could stand in the way of a peace settlement."
